Behind the Front

For a historic special session, Congress gathered today to hear President Roosevelt, heavily guarded, outline his neutrality program, with the embargo repeal to be asked.

Prime Minister Armand Calinescu, anti-Nazi premier of Rumania, assassinated in Bucharest in believed revenge for the death of Cornelieu Zelea Codreanu, leader of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard.

As a result of the assassination, Rumania was believed in fear of a Hitler invasion on the possible Nazi claim that disorder prevails in the country.

Mysteriously missing since the war's start, Dr. Paul Josef Goebbels, Germany's chief of propaganda, suddenly reappeared in Berlin and denied reports of a Czech anti-Nazi revolt. Goebbels promised no Dutch or Belgian invasion.

Possibility of a Soviet-Nazi split growing, with rumors of renewed quarreling over division of the spoils in Poland.

On the Land

French army reported threatening approaches to Zweibruecken, Germany, at upper end of the Blies river valley. Meanwhile, Nazi batteries pounded enemy lines of communication on the western front as reports of swift night movements by French troops hinted at plans for a major offensive.

Warsaw and other Polish areas fought on against odds multiplied by the Russian advance. German commanders, however, feel that the campaign in Poland is practically completed and ever-increasing numbers of men and quantities of supplies are being shifted to the west.

Berlin told of a crushing Polish defeat at Kutno, with the capture of 105,000 Poles. Warsaw said, however, that vigorous resistance is being maintained at Kutno.

On the Sea

Two British flying boats rescued the crew of 34 from a torpedoed steamer, Kensington Court, with the location given as "somewhere in the Atlantic." Britain reveals that H. H. S. Courageous was engaged in a raid on Kiel Canal fortifications when she was sunk, and that planes were preparing for launching from this aircraft carrier.

Confirmation still lacking as to whether or not the giant German liner Bremen had been seized by British warships and escorted to a port in Britain. Reports of a major naval battle off Jutland discounted when the British Admiralty reported its naval artillery was engaged in target practice.

In the Air

Warsaw claimed today that seven German bombers had been shot down while fierce German air raids were completing the devastation by an all-day shelling of the city.

On the western front, German and French planes were reported as having engaged in savage fights to determine the mastery of the air over the Maginot and Siegfried lines.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—The 76th Congress convened in extraordinary session today to receive a special message from President Roosevelt in person—a message that will touch off the gravest legislative deliberation since the war year of 1917.

The House and Senate met in their respective chambers at opposite ends of the Capitol, freshly-washed and gleaming in the early autumn sun. The sessions were perfunctory, marked mostly by friendly greetings among the members.

At 3 p. m. the two branches resolved into a joint session to hear the President's program for neutrality in Europe's struggle—a program, he is convinced, that can keep America out of war.

But the President faced a Congress determined to move carefully on any proposal for revision of the present neutrality law which has clamped an absolute embargo on shipment of American implements of war to belligerents in Europe.

OFFERS THREE WAYS

Congressional leaders expected the President's message to offer a proposal embracing one of three alternatives. These are:

1—Simple repeal of the embargo on arms and a return to the processes of international law. The President was represented as having indicated he would be satisfied with this action.

2—Substitution of a cash and carry neutrality law for the present absolute embargo on arms.

Europe Over 25 Years

Late War Bulletins

LONDON, Sept. 21 (INS)—That Germany and Soviet Russia are already quarreling over division of some of the territorial spoils in Poland was indicated today in diplomatic information reaching London.

The particular bones of contention between Berlin and Moscow are understood to be the city and district of Vilna in northeastern Poland and the oil fields of Galicia in the southeast.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 21 (INS)—Acting on a tip from the French embassy here, Argentine naval authorities today launched a widespread search in the delta of the River Platte for a huge cache of German gasoline and provisions. Hundreds of small islands were searched.

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Sept. 21 (AP)—Lithuanian troops today placed flags along unclearly marked sections of the frontier bordering areas of Poland being occupied by Soviet troops. Official circles said the Russians did the same.

LONDON, Sept. 21 (INS)—The British government will introduce its war budget on Sept. 27, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain announced in Commons today.

BASEL, Sept. 21 (INS)—Three of the largest type French bombing planes were observed returning from the direction of Germany here today, indicating action deep in the rear areas of the Nazi war zone.

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (INS)—The commander and crew of the German U-boat that sank the British aircraft carrier Courageous with a loss of more than 500 lives were officially congratulated today by Admiral Eric Raeder, commander of the German navy.

(Editor's Note—The British admiralty declared the submarine was sunk by British destroyers soon after the Courageous went down.)

LONDON, Sept. 21 (INS)—According to a reliable Austrian source, Germany is feverishly building fortifications resembling the Siegfried line along the Italian border, a Zurich dispatch to the Evening News stated today.

PARIS, Sept. 21 (INS)—Premier Edouard Daladier will deliver a nation-wide broadcast on the military and political situation at 8:30 p. m., it was announced today.

U. S. to Seek Russian Release of Envoy

BUCHAREST, Sept. 21 (AP)—American authorities were expected today to take diplomatic action, probably in Moscow, to obtain the release of William Morton, United States vice consul in Warsaw, caught on the Polish side of the Dniester river during the Russian occupation.

British Flying Boats Save Steamer Crew

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP)—The British government announced today that two Royal Air Force flying patrol boats had rescued the crew of 34 of the steamship Kensington Court, which sent out an SOS after having been attacked by a submarine.

A Ministry of Information announcement said that the rescue, somewhere in the Atlantic ocean, was the first case in which an entire ship's crew had been picked up at sea by flying boats.

The Kensington Court was a 4863-ton vessel, owned by the Court Line, London was her port of registry.

The ministry's announcement said the flying boats, responding to an S. O. S., arrived alongside a lifeboat from the Kensington Court 10 minutes before the steamer sank.

The announcement added:

"The pilots saw a tiny boat crowded with men while others were in the sea clinging to the sides.

"While one flying boat kept watch from the air, the other came down on the water alongside the overloaded lifeboat. Fourteen of the men, some in a desperate condition, were pulled into the aircraft. When it had taken off the heavy load, the other aircraft descended and picked up 20 more men.

"The two aircraft made a quick search for the attacking submarine, but it was not located. The steamer crew said one of their two lifeboats had capsized and the other was in danger of sinking."

Assassin Kills Carol's Chief, Long Nazi Foe

BUCHAREST, Sept. 21, via Copenhagen (AP)—Premier Armand Calinescu was shot and killed today by men believed to be Iron Guardists and troops were called up at once to prevent a coup.

The assassination of Calinescu—known as Rumania's "strong man" for his suppression of the outlawed, pro-Nazi Iron Guard organization—was attributed to conflicting national interests arising from the European war.

It came as German and Russian troops approached the Rumanian frontier in their occupation of Poland. Rumania got one-seventh of her territory from Russia in the World War settlement.

The Rumanian government convened immediately to take necessary measures to meet the crisis in Rumania's position in internal and international affairs resulting from the killing.

FAVORED THE ALLIES

The British-French allies and Germany were engaged in a bitter struggle, each side attempting to influence Rumania's policy to their advantage. Calinescu had been known as an advocate of political and economic cooperation with Britain and France.

(Belgrade Rumanian legation officials said after a vain attempt to reach Bucharest by telephone that "apparently the Iron Guard already is in charge." They said they had "reason to believe" that the assassination of Clainescu was only a "prelude to nation-wide uprising by the Iron Guard.")

The premier was shot at 12:30 p. m., (7:30 a. m., Boston time) from another automobile which drove alongside his car.

FEARED NAZI REVOLT

(Rumanian diplomats in Budapest said the slaying was "highly significant just at a moment when German and Russian troops are approaching Rumania's northern frontier."

(They also disclosed that the Bucharest government had suppressed rigidly news of Iron Guard agitation throughout Rumania, which was said to have begun as soon as Germany invaded Poland.

(Other Budapest sources said they believed a revolt of the outlawed Iron Guard, long expected, had come.)

The assassination was announced over the Bucharest radio, which gave no details.

(A transcript in Budapest said the broadcaster was cut off after making the announcement and declaring there was "terrible excitement" in Rumania.

(When the Associated Press correspondent attempted to give additional details of the assassination, the telephone connection between Bucharest and Copenhagen was broken.)

MARKED BY NAZIS

Diplomatic circles here had said an economic war over Rumanian oil was under way, with a German mission in Bucharest attempting to obtain vast quantities of the output for Germany's army and airforce.

The radio announcement, which interrupted a musical program, was broadcast at 1:30 p. m., and gave no details.

Calinescu's campaign against the Iron Guard came to a head in the fall of 1938 and since then police have announced discovery of a half-dozen "revenge" plots against him. He became head of the government March 7, 1939, succeeding

Eyewitness Story of War In Saar Zone

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ON THE WESTERN FRONT IN THE SAAR REGION, Sept. 21 (INS)—As reconnaissance planes roared overhead and intermittent heavy firing shattered the pastoral stillness of the Saar valley, I arrived on captured German territory today with the first group of newspapermen permitted to visit the French lines.

This dispatch is being written at a spot east of the Franco-German frontier that I am not at liberty to identify.

But it is where the actual hostilities are in progress. I have already witnessed action along the front and viewed two captured German towns — Neunkirch and—believe it or not—Hitlerdorf.

The latter village in the hills north of Sarreguemines east of the Saar river looked forlorn and deserted. I picked up a box of German matches and a French corporal gave me an abandoned Nazi flag that he had taken as a souvenir.

BALLOON SHOT DOWN

I have heard intermittent firing up in the front lines throughout the day and it is continuing now that dusk is beginning to fall.

A French observation balloon was brought down by a German plane a few minutes before our arrival at one point on the frontier, but the French observer parachuted to safety.

At another point near the border we saw French anti-aircraft guns in action against three German reconnaissance planes flying very high. The planes fled out of range as black streaks and white puffs of two types of anti-aircraft shells appeared magically in the skies. I understand that one of these planes was brought down later at another point.

SEES CAPTURED NAZIST

My real thrill of the day, however, was witnessing the bringing in of a captured German officer.

I just glimpsed him as he was rushed up in a tiny car at a point behind the lines, turned over to a French colonel of the intelligence service and whisked from view.

But I saw him long enough to glimpse his glum features. He wore an officer's peaked cap on his straw-blond hair, a field green overcoat and high quality boots, so I judged him to be at least a captain.

The picture I gained of the situation from this first visit to the actual front beyond the Maginot line can be summed up briefly thus:

The French have driven the Germans back to their permanent

PROBE U-BOAT 'RUM-SWAP' OFFER TO HUB FISH SHIPS

Bold German U-boats have hailed Boston fishing vessels off Georges banks, southeast of Cape Cod, and off the Grand banks of Newfoundland, offering to swap rum and schnapps for fresh cod and haddock, according to reports being investigated here today.

British government representatives, the Boston Evening American learned, were quietly interviewing fishing boat skippers and crew members at the Boston fish pier, seeking eyewitness descriptions of the Nazi submarines supposedly sighted at close range.

PROBE BY NAVY, TOO

Purpose of the British checkup, it was revealed, was to establish, if possible, the number and identity of U-boats lurking off New England and Canadian shores.

At the same time, interest of the U. S. Navy intelligence department in the situation was known to be keen, if unofficial, with Washington higher-ups requesting confidential advices.

According to the stories being investigated at least two Boston fishing boat crews were startled to see a German undersea raider come to the surface and approach within hailing distance.

CAN IDENTIFY CRAFT

"Hello, Yanks! We're not at war with you. How about swapping us some fresh fish for a couple of cases of good liquor?"

Apparently the sub commander had no difficulty in identifying American fishing vessels, since these have been at pains to fly the U. S. flag and otherwise make their nationality plain.

It was understood here today that investigators had no evidence of any swap of fish for rum or schnapps having actually been made.

GOEBBELS FLAYS TWO STORIES AS 'WAR LIES'

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (INS)—For the first time since outbreak of war in Europe, Propaganda Minister Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels broke his silence today, summoning the foreign press to his office to deny any intention on the part of Nazi Germany to violate the neutrality of Belgium or Holland.

The little Nazi spokesman took occasion to deal ironically with foreign reports that he had disagreed with Hitler and had been dismissed from office.

He appeared before the correspondents to dispose of one rumor, heard in Amsterdam, that he was actually dead, and declared it was "beneath his dignity" to deal with assertions that seven leading Nazis have deposited a total of more than $34,000,000 in cash, bonds and life insurance holdings abroad.

Mothers' Tears End Bravado of Quincy Boys Held in Murder

Mothers' tears today shattered the bravado of Arthur S. Cray, Jr., and Irwin R. Nelson, Jr., both 16, as they awaited arraignment in the chambers of Judge Kenneth L. Nash in Quincy on charges of first degree murder.

They had been laughing, joking, humming popular songs—jitterbug songs. Disturbed by what seemed unregenerate brashness, police gruffly ordered them to be still. They laughed defiantly; and, then—

Suddenly their mothers were there before them, crying, weeping desperately over this thing that had happened to them. And, as suddenly, the prisoners were two little boys again, crying, too, as realization of their predicament came to them.

Arthur S. Cray Irwin R. Nelson

It was only a few minutes, this dramatic meeting with their families, and then they were taken into Judge Nash's chambers and the arraignment, a secret proceeding because of their youth.

FORMALLY HELD

Young Cray, whose home is in Morgan rd., Quincy, was represented by Atty. Jeremiah A. McAnarney, one of the attorneys who fought for the lives of Sacco and Vanzetti. Nelson, whose home is on granite st., Quincy, had former Judge Kenneth D. Johnson as counsel.

The proceedings were brief. They were formally accused of shooting to death Emil Carlson, 45, of 24 Buckley st., West Quincy, Tuesday night when they held him up in Carroll's lane, a lonely, wooded street, near Quarry rd.

The object, robbery of the few cents he had in his pocket.

The murder, a climax to a series of forays in which the loot totalled $2.16.

Judge Nash ordered both held without bail on the murder charge, and fixed bonds of $7500 each on three other charges of robbery. Five charges of attempted robbery were not presented.

TAKEN TO JAIL

After pleading not guilty they were taken to Dedham jail to await action of the December grand jury.

While the boys awaited the hearing another element in the case was disposed of with the arraignment, also before Judge Nash, of Kenneth R. Walker, 19, of Faxon rd., Quincy, a gasoline attendant, accused of selling them the revolver used in the alleged murder.

Walker, in court, admitted he had stolen the weapon last March from the automobile of Deputy Sheriff Lawrence E. Tucker, of Wyoming ave., Melrose, while it was parked in Willard st., Quincy.

GETS 6 MONTHS

Judge Nash sentenced him to six months in the House of Korrection on the theft charge after he pleaded guilty.

The three other robberies of which Gray and Nelson are accused, and the loot obtained, were:

Charles Erickson of 18 Prout st., Quincy, 6 cents.

Walter Bishop of 411 Granite st., Quincy, 7 cents.

Guiseppe Tudini of 40 Ararat rd., Quincy, 32 cents.

GIRL FALLS DEAD IN REVERE SCHOOL

There was a smile today on the face of little Beverly Freeman, 14-year-old ninth grade pupil, as she ran down a corridor in Garfield Junior High school at Revere.

Andrew Bachelor, a teacher, coming along the corridor in the other direction, smiled back as she approached in her hurry to get to her classroom.

Then Bachelor sprang forward. As if a cloud had passed in front of her, the smile vanished, there was a look of paid and she collapsed.

The teacher caught her up, carried her quickly into an empty room and placed her down—but the girl was dead.

Another teacher summoned Dr. Maurice Rosen, and he and members of the fire department rescue squad worked over her for some time before Dr. Rosen officially pronounced her dead.

So quickly had the girl been carried from the corridor that none of the other dozen or more pupils passing to and fro knew of the death of one of their number.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Freeman of Campbell avenue, Revere, had been a sufferer from heart trouble almost since birth, the grief-stricken mother, Mrs. Betty Freeman, told police.

On her medical examination chart and record, it was noted that she had an enlarged heart.

Sheila Rossa Fights State Post Ouster

Miss Sheila O'Donovan Rossa, long active in the organization and work of the Women's Democratic Club of Massachusetts, has been discharged as a placement officer in the State Department of Corrections, it was learned today through abolishment of the post.

SHEILA O'D. ROSSA
Fired From State Job

In a fight to retain her job, to which she was appointed by former Gov. James M. Curley and which paid $1650 a year, Miss Rossa has retained Atty. Warren Patten, a strong Republican.

Patten was counsel for a special legislative commission in 1938 which investigated alleged "gift jobs" under the old State Unemployment Compensation Commission.

A hearing will be given Miss Rossa tomorrow at Norfolk prison colony by Arthur C. Lyman, state commissioner of correction.

Her work has been the finding of jobs for men released from the prison colony.

An attractive blonde, she became widely known as a singer, aiding the campaigns of former Governors Curley and Charles F. Hurley.

Her retention of Atty. Patten, who is close to the present administration, caused considerable speculation at the State House, where it was learned that she had been sent a written notice personally by Commr. Lyman that her position had been abolished.

"I cannot talk about Miss Rossa's discharge ina dvance of tomorrow's hearing," said Attorney Patten, and added significantly:

"But one thing we definitely insist upon is a public hearing, so that the public may learn all the facts."

Miss Marian Nichols of Beacon Hill, head of the Massachusetts Civil Service Reform Association, has gone to Miss Rossa's aid on the ground that her discharge is a violation of civil service, and tomorrow Miss Nichols will appear at the hearing to speak against abolishment of Miss Rossa's post.

Fifteen persons, including several small children in three families, fled to the street today when fire swept the top floor of a three-story dwelling house in Union st., Brighton.

Of undetermined origin, the blaze broke out on a rear porch, near the apartment occupied by Joseph Fitzgerald and family, fire officials said.

Fitzgerald discovered the flames and awakened other dwellers as he ran downstairs to ring in the alarm. William Sullivan and family live in the first-floor apartment and the family of John O'Donnell on the second.

The fire was confined to the third story and damage was estimated at $1200.

HITLER PLANS OIL GRAB IN RUMANIA

PARIS, Sept. 21 (INS)—Reports of an impending Russo-German drive to carve up Rumania and her rich oil and agricultural resources were heard in Paris today as French forces on the western front stiffened in anticipation of a German mass offensive at any time.

There was no confirmation here of reports that Hitler was expected on the western front shortly to open the offensive.

But the fact he sent Col.-Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, his commander-in-chief, to the scene strongly indicated the Germans were preparing a major attack against French fortifications.

LIKE TACTICS IN POLAND

It was recalled the Germans' strategy of leadership in Poland was as follows:

First, Von Brauchitsch and others of the German general staff took up field headquarters near Bromberg in the Polish corridor, initial point of German invasion.

Second, Hitler arrived to direct operations, remaining until victory was certain.

Third, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, as commander of the German air force, took his place at field headquarters to administer the "coup de grace" to Poland from the skies.

Immediate activity in the west, however, continued to be of subordinate nature and there were increasing indications of further Russo-German military activities in Eastern Europe to obtain sufficient supplies to prosecute the war on the west.

HITLER GETS GLAICIA OIL

Soviet troops, it was learned, are concentrating on the Rumanian frontier, abandoning the Galician oil fields which are being handed over to Germany as a prize of war.

Military circles believe that as a reward for her part in Poland Russia is to receive Bessarabia, detached from Russia and given to Rumania by World War treaties.

Nazi Germany will take part in this partition, it is believed. Diplomatic pressure will first be brought to bear. Demands will be made that Rumania deliver to Germany certain quantities of oil and agricultural products.

Should Rumania agree, the assumption is she will take some minor place in the Nazi-Fascist orbit, sacrificing natural wealth and territory to preserve a vestige of independence.

If not, the French believe, Germans and Russians will march in.

POLES TURN ON SOVIET INVADERS

By GEORGE BALINT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BUDAPEST, Sept. 21 (INS)—Inflicting heavy casualties on Soviet troops, Polish forces east of Brest-Litovsk reformed their lines today and opened a hevay counter-offensive in the regions evacuated by the German armies.

Reports received in Budapest by way of Cernauti, Rumania, told of striking blows dealt by the "mushroom" Polish armies, which sprang up almost overnight with little organization or equipment, but with and unconquerable desire for vengeance upon the invaders.

German troops withdrew from the area immediately after Russian and German military officials mapped the partition of Poland at Brest-Litovsk.

As soon as the motorized German columns had withdrawn the Poles swiftly reunited forces previously divided by a German wedge and launched a telling attack upon the Russians.

A tremendous battle was reported in the swamps near Grudno, where Russian motorized units and tanks sank deep in the marshy ground.

Fierce Polish attacks also were reported on the Vilna-Bialystok line.

The cities of Lwow and Luk remained in Polish hands, the Cernauti reports stated, with pitched battles raging in their suburbs comparable to the fighting in Warsaw itself.

The reports received in Budapest spoke of "serious Soviet casualties" and "strong Polish resistance" not only near Grudno but in the Carpathian mountain area as well.

First Lady Sees U. S., 'No' to War

ST. PAUL, Sept. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said here in an interview that the people of this country now are "definitely set against war."

"It is rather unwise to make predictions about where we will find ourselves in the future," she said. "Most of us are not at all sure. I do know this, however: Now the people of this country are definitely set against war. That is the feeling they have now."

POLISH PLANES ESCAPE

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 21 (AP)—Three Polish planes landed yesterday near Shumen after a flight of more than 625 miles—the greatest distance reported covered by any fleeing Polish airmen. The Poles and the machines were interned.

60,000 Poles Taken, Reds Say

MOSCOW, Sept. 21 (INS)—Soviet troops today held Polish territory on a line stretching from Grodno, 16 miles from the border of East Prussia, to Lemberg (Lwow), south-central Poland, an official announcement said.

(Soviet reports of the occupation of Lemberg conflicted with one Berlin report that "the only points where the Polish forces are still offering resistance are at Warsaw and in and around Lemberg.")

As the Russians moved forward with but little resistance, it was stated here they captured 60,000 Polish prisoners, 120 airplanes and 280 pieces of artillery.

With this area in hand, it was reported that additional Soviet troops would be sent into the Lwow area to consolidate present positions.

Meanwhile four German officers conferred in Moscow with high Russian military officials. The Germans arrived to assist the German military attache here, Lieut.-Gen. Ernst Koestring.

Air Raid Warden Sees 'Sea Fight'

LONDON, Sept. 21 (INS)—Witnesses along the shores of the English channel and auditors in Denmark today gave vague accounts of what they thought must have been sea battles.

That a second battle of Jutland was fought off Denmark, however, was largely discounted in a press announcement that gunfire heard off the northeastern coast of Denmark came from Swedish artillery practising on the other side of the Kattegat straits.

Observers in Kent, however, had an actual view of Britannia's navy in operation, although it was impossible to see the target of the naval guns.

British men-of-war were seen steaming at full speed and firing as they went. An air raid warden posted atop a cliff said:

"I saw warships traveling at tremendous speed toward the French coast, firing at a spot some distance ahead. I could see nothing there, but bursts of flame from the guns were plainly visible. As the shells struck great columns of water were sent up. The firing continued for five minutes and two of the warships remained in the vicinity."

Hicks Resigns From 'Red' Paper

In protest against "distortion" of news of the Soviet-Nazi alliance and partition of Poland by the Communist press of America, former Harvard Instructor Granville Hicks, himself an avowed Communist, has resigned his associate editorship of the New Masses, he announced today.

An open letter written by Hicks to the New Masses declared his resignation was not because of Soviet-Nazi invasion of Poland, but because of Communist press treatment of the story here and because of "propaganda" being spread in this country regarding the Soviet-Nazi pact.

STORY OF HITLER'S 'TRIGGER MAN'

Previous chapters have told of the travails which beset Hermann Wilhelm Goering, World War flying ace, and Adolf Hitler, unknown corporal of infantry, in their struggle to bring Germany's National Socialist Party to power. Goering finally is elected to the Reichstag, and Germany is astounded when three Hohenzollern princes affiliate with the Nazis.

By PAUL WHELTON

CHAPTER FIVE

In troubled Germany, the year 1928 passed into 1929, with the economic distress and the era of misunderstanding of her own politicians giving Goering every opportunity to rally to him more and more of the working classes.

Throughout Germany, and particularly among the working and student divisions, there began to be heard, more frequently, "Heil Hitler," as the corporal hammered home the tenets of Nazism on the outside while Goering was roaring them in the Reichstag.

During the summer of 1929, Goering toured the whole Reich, capitalizing his role of war ace and last commander of the Richthofen squadron.

A nice touch was the lavish use of airplanes in making the tour, accompanied on many of the trips by Prince August Wilhelm. The German people, despite the flight of the Kaiser in 1918, were visibly impressed. New members poured into the Nazi Party.

GERMANY FLAT BROKE

Germany was in the strange position of having a balanced budget under President von Hindenburg but being a nation flat broke. The Reich had been paying debts with borrowed money; now lenders would lend no more.

One-fourth of the total trade union membership were out of work, 16 per cent more were working on part time, transitional benefit (unemployment compensation) rose to such heights that it had to be drastically curtailed. Relief agencies were mobbed.

Goering was returned to the Reichstag in the elections of September, 1930, when 107 Nazi seats were won, but it was presumably with a heavy heart because Karin had fallen again desperately ill and was in a sanatorium in Kreuth. With Goering was living her son by her first marriage, Thomas von Kantzow.

80,000 STORM TROOPERS

Still not yet a German citizen, Hitler was conducting the Nazi fight among the constituencies, with no chance for a seat in the Reichstag. Goebbels was busily directing his newspaper as the propaganda department of the party.

With his new election, Goering was appointed the political deputy or commissioner of Hitler in the Reichstag, placing him in the front rank of politicians. The Storm Troopers had grown to 80,000 members, but as watchdogs to watch the watchdogs, Goering had organized the Schutz Staffeln (S. S.) forerunner of the dread Gestapo or secret police. The S. S. were as a cap badge a silver skull-and-crossbones.

Now more and more distinguished visitors called at the Goering home Fritz Thyssen, coal and steel baron; Kruger of the potash syndicate; Hjalmar Schacht, the Reichsbank president; Alfred Hugenberg, greatest newspaper proprietor and film magnate in Germany, who turned his properties into huge propaganda machines for the Nazis.

Economic conditions in Germany, however, were "rapidly getting no better." The flight of the mark had begun and banks were closed.

The Hoover Moratorium on reparations for one year came too late and unemployment increased by several millions.

GOERING'S WIFE DIES

In September of that year, Karin Goering's mother died. Despite doctors' warnings that she could not stand the journey to Stockholm for the funeral, Karin was taken there by her husband. She collapsed.

Nazi politics called Goering back to Berlin from the bedside of Karin 10 days after Hitler and Goering had been called in by Reichspresident Hindenburg to discuss plans of the National Socialist movement. Goering received the new of Karin's death.

Returned to Germany, after her funeral, Goering buried himself in Nazi work. For some time Ernst Roehm had been back and to him was given the title of chief of staff of the Storm Troops, relieving Goering of some of the detail. At about this time, too, came the first steps toward forming an air corps, although the movement was not in full swing until 1933.

Goering's masterpiece has been Nazi Germany's miraculous rearmaments, effected with considerable secrecy. When Goering began, Germany was forbidden more than 100,000 soldiers and a little artillery; no tanks, no military airplanes.

But during those two years, from the first sketchy beginnings in early 1932, he built up an "Air Sport League." In March of 1935 they put on uniforms—and the "Air Sport League" was officially revealed as the German Air Force.

In March, 1935, Hitler brusquely told Sir John Simon and Anthony Eden that Germany was already stronger in the air than the whole British Empire.

At the time of the Czechoslovak crisis in 1938, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was reported of the opinion that the German air force was superior to those of England, France and Russia together.

Goering's building of the air force started with encouragement of week-end flying in those early days of 1932.

NO MURDER PENALTY

This year saw Germany swept by open anarchy, Communists clashing with the anti-Communistic National Socialists in the streets. Political murders were regular on newspaper front pages, but capital punishment had been abolished and often a slayer having a good lawyer could escape with a two-year penalty.

Hitler had become a citizen and was eligible to be a candidate in the presidential election of March, 1932, but disappointment came to the Nazis when President Hindenburg was re-elected, with 19,359,642 votes to 13,417,460 for Hitler and 3,706,388 for Thaelmann, the Communist candidate.

(Defeat for dictatorship, but not oblivion. The Nazis march doggedly on. Continue the story of Hitler's Trigger Man in tomorrow's Boston Evening American).

How to Avoid Neutrality

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Congress meets today to discuss neutrality, war and how to avoid them both.

War and grand opera are Europe's contribution to the ultimate in noise. Unlike Caesar, we came, we saw, but we don't concur.

The prescription for neutrality was written by this writer in 1917, "Keep your hand on the trigger and your eye on the instigator."

Rumanian Premier Slain by Assassins

On June 17, police said, Iron Guardists planned to assassinate Calinescue and King Carol with hand grenades at a race track.

Calinescu was minister of interior in charge of police on Nov. 30, 1938, when Cornelu Zelea Corean, Iron Guard leader and so-called "Little Hitler" of Rumania, was shot dead by guards "while attempting to escape" during a transfer from one prison to another, according to the official version.

11 OF AIDS SHOT

Besides Codreanu, his 11 chief aides also were shot. At that time there were reports that Iron Guardists had taken an oath to assassinate Calinescu in revenge.

Despite frequent reported discovery of such plots against him, the premier steadfastly refused to have a bodyguard.

It was said that Calinescu—a small man with a sightless left eye covered by a black monocle—told King Carol when the monarch begged him to employ guards:

"No man can escape his fate."

(In Budapest Rumanian legation sources reported there had been constant agitation throughout Rumania by Iron Guard members since the start of Germany's invasion of Poland. They said the news had been suppressed by the Bucharest government lest it lead to "complications" during the international crisis.

(They explained the "complications" by pointing to assertions frequently made by Calinescu in the past that Nazi authorities in Berlin were supporting the Iron Guard directly.

(Earlier today authoritative sources in Bucharest said the Rumanian government had decided to intern Polish President Ignace Moscicki and other high Polish civil officials who came to Rumania from Poland. Nazis had insisted on their internment.

(A transcription of the Rumanian government radio program available at Budapest showed that the announcer said:

("This morning a successful attempt was made on the life of Premier Calinescu.

("Throughout Rumania there is terrible excitement and—"

(At that point he was cut short and the station went silent.)

Last January and February police announced discovery of terrorist plots by the Iron Guardists to overthrow Carol's regime and assassinate his "strong man" Calinescu.

Calinescu became minister of interior for the anti Semitic Octavian Goga Dec. 28, 1937, and held that position under Cristea, as well as the additional post of war minister and vice-premier.

Magda Lupescu, Carol's Friend, Blamed in Death

BUCHAREST, Sept. 21 (INS)—Red-haired Mme. Magda Lupescu, favorite of King Carol, was blamed indirectly today for the assassination of Premier Armand Calinescu.

It was Calinescu's campaign against the Nazi-inspired Rumanian Iron Guard that brought him into international prominence.

The organization had become increasingly active in Rumania and on several occasions threatened the life of Mme. Lupescu, a Jewess, who lived with King Carol many years during his exile in France.

During his tenure of office as Minister of the Interior, Calinescu rounded up hundreds of Iron Guard members, interning them in concentration camps. On several occasions last fall, large groups of the terrorists were shot down and killed "while attempting to escape" during their transfer from one prison to another.

Assassination Recalls Murder of Dollfus

Today's assassination in Bucharest recalled the brutal slaying of Englebert Dollfuss, Austria's anti-Nazi chancellor, who was shot down in his office by Hitler brownshirts in the Vienna "putsch" of July 25, 1934.

Great of heart although small of stature, Dollfuss was affectionally known as his nation's "gamecock" premier.

Unarmed, he faced the Nazi "revolters" who felled him with two bullets fired at point blank range through his body, then left him to bleed to death on a divan, refusing medical assistance or a priest for whose services he had asked.

French Advance, Nazis Mass Troops Near Belgian Border

PARIS, Sept. 21 (AP)—War dispatches said today the French army was threatening approaches to Zweibruecken, Germany, at the upper end of the Blies river valley.

These advices reported French advance units had fought numerous pitched battles with German patrols in the Zweibruecken zone and further west, near Saarbruecken, another German city which the French were attempting to surround.

Zweibruecken, about 16 miles from Saarbruecken, lies five miles within Germany and Saarbruecken two miles.

These reports indicated each side was seeking prisoners in the gun bristling zone between the northern reaches of the Maginot and Siegfried lines from whom to pry secrets of strategy and troop disposition.

The French expected a major German offensive soon on the western front as a sequel to the successful onslaught on Poland.

French and German aviation clashed yesterday in a series of battles for mastery of the air over the Siegfried and Maginot forts.

While land patrols thrust at the French behind a curtain of artillery fire, German planes took off apparently with the double purpose of straffing French positions and enticing French airmen into combat. A Messerschmidt fighter was reported shot down behind the French line.

The British and French staffs were in constant contact, apparently studying a threat which many observers saw in the reported massing of German troops at Aachen, Germany, near the Belgian and the Netherlands borders.

It was from Aachen sector in 1914 that the Germans swept across Belgium and into northern France. Col.-Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, German chief of staff, was reported to have left Germany's Polish front for the west and the Germans were said to have concentrated from 1500 to 2000 heavy bombing planes near Aachen.

Whether Russia would or could keep Germany supplied with raw materials to fight a long war now has become a major consideration in allied strategy.

The French pointed out the Russian forces in Poland were occupying regions along the Rumanian and Hungarian frontiers and they wondered whether Russia would bar Germany from pressure on Rumania.

At least, said the French, Russia now is in position to exact a good price for cooperation with Germany in the Danubian basin.

Duke of Windsor On Battle Front

LONDON, Sept. 21 (INS)—The Duke of Windsor today was at the battle front, as a major general of the British army, billeted in a chateau whose location is "somewhere in France," the Daily Telegraph reported this morning.

The newspaper did not state when the Duke left England, but merely reported he had "arrived" 'somewhere in France'

HITLER WAR CHIEF FLIES TO WEST

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (INS)—With 350,000 Polish prisoners taken and the Reich's eastern enemy vanquished, Germany finally turned her full attention to the Western Front today.

Col.-Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander-in-chief of the German army, landed somewhere on the Siegfried line after a swift flight from Poland to supervise preparations being made for the opening of full hostilities against Great Britain and France.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering in a speech a week ago Saturday promised that once Poland had been dealt with, 70 German divisions, numbering at least a million men, would be dispatched for service in the west.

Their transportation to the west wall has been proceeding for the past week, and all is soon expected to be in readiness for hostilities.

(The London Daily Mirror, in an Amsterdam dispatch, reported that Adolf Hitler himself was leaving for the Siegfried line shortly.)

Official German spokesman denounced as "lies and propaganda" reports that Hitler planned an invasion o fBelgium or Holland to achieve a quick thrust against France and establish bases for lightning air attacks upon England.

The German high command announced the capture of a total of 350,000 prisoners today in describing the surrender of large detachments at Tomaszow.

Siegfried Line Forts Wait Allied Smash

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 21 (AP)—German batteries pounded enemy lines of communication along the Western Front today as reports of swift night movements by French troops hinted at plans for a major offensive.

Swiss military observers expressed belief that the joint French-British command now has decided on the point to launch the first assault on the main forts of the Siegfried Line.

Increased activity was reported on the part of both French and German patrols, with the primary object of taking prisoners and gaining information concerning troop concentrations.

These reports, and the fact that the French appeared to be consolidating their positions instead of attempting further local advances, increased Swiss belief a great battle is in the making.

BRITISH REPORT CZECH REVOLT

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP)—The British hope of enlisting German's anti-Nazis in the fight against Adolf Hitler was quickened today by reports of a "serious" revolt in two Czecho-Slovak provinces which last March became a Reich protectorate.

A ministry of information communique said Britain had received authoritative information that a revolutionary movement had started last Sunday in Bohemia and Moravia and was continuing despite "ruthless" repressive measures.

"That this is not just a flash in the pan," the ministry said, "is shown by the unanimity of purpose, the tenacity and the discipline of the participants."

It was recalled in London that Edouard Benes, former President of the Czechoslovak republic, told Prime Minister Chamberlain only two days after Britain's declaration of war,

"We Czechoslovak citizens consider ourselves as being also at war with Germany's military forces . . ."

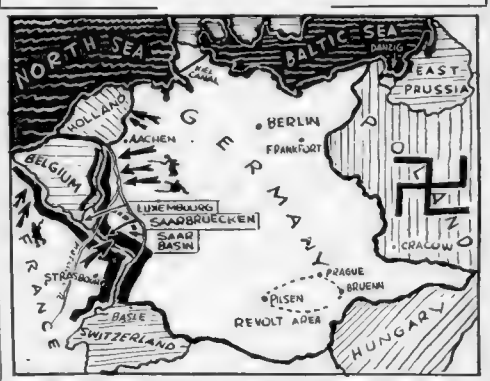
The information ministry, describing the uprising, said that "firearms were used on both sides and casualties are said to have been considerable."

On Sept. 19, the communique went on, Slovak garrisons at several places revolted and "about 15,000 troops have been disarmed." Arrests throughout the protectorate, the statement said, "ran into thousands, those executed into hundreds."

In the course of the revolt, which began with labor disturbances in Prague, the information ministry said, "bridges on important railways and roads were damaged, fire stations put out of action, rolling stock and material damaged, workshops of important factories bombed and machinery destroyed."

(In Berlin a spokesman for Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Reich's protector for Bohemia and Moravia, said reports of an organized revolt in the protectorate were "nonsense." He invited correspondents to visit Prague to see for themselves.)

WAR ON WESTERN FRONT



EUROPE'S western front took on a new aspect today. With German thrusts at the French positions in the Saarbruecken area turned back, the Nazis have shifted divisions to the border opposite Belgium and Holland. This move indicated a planned thrust through Belgium toward France or an occupation of Holland. French strengthened the western section of the Maginot Line to forestall such a move and Belgian forces were strengthened also.

Goebbels Denies Invasion Story

H. R. Knickerbocker, world famous correspondent of International News Service, disclosed in detail authoritative information given him regarding these holdings. All of the leading figures in the Nazi regime with the exception of Hitler himself, he revealed, have deposited huge fortunes abroad. Goebbels was named as the holder of the largest cash amounts of all.)

"I wish to deny most categorically," Goebbels said, "all reports appearing in the foreign press during the last few days to the effect that the German army is contemplating a violation of the neutrality of Belgium or Holland.

"I am in a position to deny, categorically and absolutely unambiguously, each and every one of these reports.

"The German government never had and never will have any intention of violating Dutch or Belgian neutrality."

DENIES CZECHS REVOLT

Goebbels was asked about the status of Luxembourg.

"Luxembourg is included in my statement," he said.

"Contrary to foreign assertions, neither Aschen (Aik-La-Chapelle) nor other towns on the lower Rhine have been evacuated.

Congress, Split, Hears Plea by F. D.

This would permit belligerents to purchase arms in this country for cash, then carry them away in their own ships thus keeping munitions off U. S. merchant ships.

3—A cash and carry neutrality law to apply to all purchases by belligerents in the United States. This would apply to foodstuffs and raw materials in addition to arms and would serve to keep all U. S. merchant craft out of the war zones. This plan is considered least likely to be among the President's proposals.

REPEAL TO SUIT F. D.

Before the President journeyed to the Capitol, the White House said he would be satisfied with simple repeal of the arms embargo and a return to international law—a course advocated by some of the administration's staunchest supporters.

The convening of the special session while Europe's guns blazed again across the western front, was a parallel in some respects to the day 22 years and a few months ago when Congress voted war upon Kaiser Wilhelm's Germany.

There was the same seriousness of purpose and the atmosphere of historic events, but this time Congress' mood was the mood of peace and members of all political caste expressed the determination that nothing would be done in this session to pull the nation toward the crushing vortex of war.

But before the Congress settled to its task of far-reaching implications, the members chatted gaily of their brief vacations—the regular session adjourned little more than two months ago.

READ PROCLAMATION

Vice-President Garner, presiding over the Senate, had to rap his gavel sharply to bring quiet so that the session could be declared formally begun. Garner shouted:

"This is a proclamation of the President calling Congress into extra session. The chair thinks that the Senate and the galleries should give their attention while it is being read."

After the proclamation had been read, the Senate adjourned at the call of the chair at 3 p. m.

When the stir had been quieted in the House and the President's proclamation formally read there, the members stood with bowed heads to hear the prayer of the chaplain, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery. He begged for divine guidance for the session.

PRAYER FOR DEMOCRACY

In deeply solemn tone, the chaplain prayed:

"May our flag continue to wave and in its all embracing fold over a united people with a determination that democracy shall not die but shall triumph over every form of tyranny, through Jesus Christ, Our Lord."

The House also recessed until 3 p. m.

The House was prepared, after hearing the President's special message, to adjourn until Monday.

Since the Senate Foreign Relations committee will meet tomorrow to consider neutrality legislation, the initial legislative work of the extra session will be on that side of the capitol.

SLAIN IN GANG FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (INS)—Joseph La Cava, 38, was found shot to death and Rocco Fago, 40, was taken to a hospital with serious injuries today after a mysterious gang fight on the lower East Side.

U. S. ROW DELAYS NAZI COUP

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (AP) Germany's failure to strike Warsaw a crushing blow was attributed in well-informed quarters today to a policy of waiting while the United States Congress decides whether American arms and war materials may be sent to Europe.

Interest on influencing the United States' decision whether or not to revise her neutrality legislation at the special session of Congress brought the propagandists' batteries to the fore while front-line activities slackened.

As a result of the reported German policy toward Poland's Capital, Germans believed there would be no violent attack there which might inflame opinion while vitally important decisions were being made in Washington.

POLES STILL HOLD ON

The army high command reported today only four centers of resistance to Nazi forces remained in Poland and Germans expected they would fall without shelling.

The points still held by Poles, a communique said, included:

1. Warsaw, besieged capital of Poland. (Reports from Budapest said the Warsaw radio which had been maintaining contact with the outside world suddenly went dead during the playing of a Polish military air.)

3—Gora Kalwarja, on the left bank of the istula 23 miles southeast of Warsaw.

4—On the Mele peninsula, narrow finger of land poking out into the Guf of Danzig. ffs extremity lal 9 miles northeast of Danzig.

German officers indicated that no lightning strokes against these centers were planned, but rather since they are surrounded, that th feeling is time will work for Germany and the Poles will surrender.

WHY BOMBERS DELAY

One of the generals n Hitler's entourage, discussing the situation of Warsaw, said on Tuesday,

"Our Fuehrer does not think it worth while to risk the life of a single German soldier to take Warsaw. Cut off on all sides, it has no alternative save to surrender.

"Why, then, should we shell it and give food—though unjustified—to anti-German propagandas that we are firing on women and children?"

Military men said the same feeling applied to the other remaining islands of resistance

Some 3000 poles were believed to be isolated on the Hela peninsula

Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz brought into the open a German complaint previously whispered in government circles, that Anthony Joseph Drexel Biddle, Jr., United States Ambassador to Poland, was "serving British propaganda."

The United States State Department made public Sept. 13 two cablegrams from Biddle in which the ambassador reported witnessing German aerial bombardment of defenseless towns in Poland as well as military objectives.

Korrespondenz asserted the object of anti-German propaganda was to persuade Warsaw by radio to continue what it called "useless resistance" in the hope that Germans would bombard the city and thus arouse world, esceplally American, indignation.

Sift Concord Ashes For Fire Victim Clue

A squad of laborers under direction of Concord police sifted ashes of a burned West Concord bungalow today, seeking clues to identify a victim whose bones were found in the ruins.

At the same time investigating authorities leaned increasingly to the belief that the person who apparently died in the flames was the bungalow's tenant, Charles B. Kelley, 38, an unmarried carpenter.

Although it was at first supposed Kelley had escaped from the blazing structure, no trace of him had been found today.

Position of the bones discovered in the ruins and later proven to be human was such as to indicate a fatal accident, police revealed.

Probers said evidence seemed to show that Kelley had fallen asleep beside an oil stove which caught fire and perhaps exploded showering him with burning oil.

WEST FRONT TOLL THOUSANDS, SAYS DOWNS

The depth of the advance ranges anywhere up to about 15 kilometers (9 1-3 miles.) There are advance lines of French and Germans in constant contact and constant action.

The casualties have run into several thousand.

Thus while it can be seen that it is no parlor game, I am able to report that the real frightfulness has not yet commenced. Action so far has been limited mainly to open fighting, artillery bombardments, aerial observation and considerable action by tanks, armored cars and mechanized units, with steady consolidation of positions.

All this could be described as a sort of overture for the real symphony of death and destruction which may be started at any moment, either now or days or weeks from now.

The point I make is that all is in readiness for anything on the French side.

A NATION OF WAR

General mobilization is complete.

I thought I knew what mobilization meant but when I actually glimped it, I was completely staggered by its enormity. The entire north and east of France is organized for war.

Normal life has been completely suspended and millions of noncombatants have been evacuated from an area extending for a couple of hundred miles behind the lines in all directions.

Every mile of this area is now military territory, integrated to the last degree into France's vast and smoothly working military machine.

There are no big concentrations in the last war. That is because of the present efficiency of the air arm. Instead, troops are widely spread everywhere.

One can cover hundreds of square miles never ceasing to see units of armies all finely integrated, equipped with wireless and both motor and horse transportation.

HITLER QUICKNESS FUTILE

This organization is so completely carried out now that it would be an utter impossibility for Hitler to employ his "Blitzkrieg"—which is primarily aimed at prevention of mobilization.

Even if Goering could send his air fleets over unopposed, he could not effect great military damage now.

I noted that camouflage has been developed with the greatest art. I virtually ran smack into airplanes in fields before seeing them, so cleverly disguised had they been.

It was an interesting game to try to locate planes in the fields as we drove through the countryside en route to the front line zone.

We passed scores of fields where planes had been parked in cleverly scattered positions, but I daresay we drove past some concentrations without seeing them at all.

There were many British Royal Air Force pilots to be seen at scattered places. Naturally I cannot disclose the names of these places, but I can say I have seen troops from all parts of France, from all parts of the French empire and of all military ages during the course of this day.

TROOPS LOOK TOUGH

I was greatly impressed by the deadly business-like attitude of the troops. They look good and they look tough.

In Spain, wherever I passed troops who were not fighting, whether they were Spanish, Moroccan or Italian, they were always singing or indulging in some sort of horseplay. I saw none of this today.

The troops we passed in villages in camps or on roads regarded us lynx-eyed and expressionless, neither hostile nor friendly. Only occasionally did some youngsters, recognizing the Paris registration of our car, call out a greeting in a Parisian accent.

The troops have no illusions about what is coming. But, believe me, they are ready for it.

I talked to both officers and men at the front who were veterans of the last war and they said:

"This has been quite different from the last time but it hasn't really gotten under way yet. There will be plenty of action when it does."

Everywhere I found grim resolution to go through with the task to the bitter end. A lieutenant colonel of the deuxieme bureau (the intelligence service, identical with our GH-2) said:

"The troops are the best I have ever seen. They are fighting with intelligence as well as deadliness.

MEAN BUSINESS

"Theirs is a much healthier mental attatude than the 1914 'On to Berlin' nonsense. They know what it means this time.

"They're angry.

"And they mean business."

When I joked with an officer about the gas mask on my back explaining that I had to carry it with me everywhere in Paris, he remarked:

"You'll be wise to keep it with you all the time."

Already there are some indications that ruthlessness is to be expected. I learned that books had been found which German troops abandoned, one of which was a manual on the art of killing. The text and pictures described various methods of inflicting death with various weapons and in certain circumstances.

The illustrations showed the right and wrong way to kill, much the same as our safety councils in America illustrate the right and wrong way to drive a car. These illustrations were labelled "richtig" (right and "falsch" (wrong).

NAZI UNIT WIPED OUT

Officers and men everywhere confirmed that German prisoners captured during the first days were completely bewildered, however, barly knowing that war existed or what they were fighting about.

A captain at one frontier point told how on the second day of fighting, a detachment of German cavalry came trotting up to French advance positions in captured German territory and was virtually wiped out by French machine-guns.

The few captured survivors were speechless with astonishment. They did not know that war was on.

There was another story told by a French colonel that threw some light upon what this war is going to be like. When a French plane was brought down three days ago, the German pilot machine-gunned the French plot as he descended in a parachute, seriously wounding him.

Thus it is possible that even the aerial chivalry observed for a while in the World War will disappear in the frightfulness of the new "guerre totale."

Women In 'War of 1939'

How is the life of a woman affected by war?

The last war changed her mode of living entirely. Women in Western Europe and America bobbed their hair, powdered their noses, lit up cigarettes and then invaded industry. Women in Turkey put aside their veils. The ladies of China walked with unbound feet.

Now that European nations are again warring, what will be the effect on the female species?

Will progress, which gave women college degrees, the right to vote and pay envelopes, turn about and give her the right to handle a pick, use a shovel—or even pick up a rifle?

"Yes" can be readily answered—for news stories tell of women fighting in Warsaw. Uniformed Polish women belted jacket, helmet and trousers were organized for duty behind the lines.

Nurses' uniforms are again quite common, as are the outfits of female dispatch riders, ambulance drivers and canteen workers. The labor of women in munitions factories is releasing the men for duty on the battle fronts.

Women are again ready for noncombatant duties at naval posts in England—are volunteering for services as ambulance drivers and auxiliary pilots. The women of Germany are harvesting crops. In Paris, women blood donors are going to St. Antoineus Hospital to give blood for storage.

Women's lives have been affected by wars down the ages—what will be the effects of the present crisis?

KEEP U. S. OUT OF WAR
—Be Neutral—

WRITE or telegraph your United States Senator and Congressman now to vote AGAINST any revision of the Neutrality Act.

DO it immediately because Congress meets in special session today to consider repeal of the present embargo on war munitions to belligerent countries.

THE embargo must remain as it is. We must not be led toward war. AMERICA COMES FIRST.

THE CHOICE confronting America in the neutrality crisis is MORE than a choice between WAR and PEACE.

It is a choice between DICTATORSHIP and DEMOCRACY—a choice NOT between the dictatorships and so-called democracies OF EUROPE, but a choice between dictatorship and democracy here IN AMERICA.

For this country cannot engage in another world conflict without sacrificing—probably forever—both the form and the spirit of its republican institutions.

No statesman of ours has discerned this truth more clearly than has Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, who says:

"It is extremely doubtful if the United States can resist the impact of another war. IN FIGHTING A EUROPEAN DICTATOR, WE WOULD CREATE ONE OF OUR OWN.

"We will save the LAST HOPE of democracy by KEEPING OUT.

"I am not willing to pay the price of saving AN EPHEMERAL DEMOCRACY in Europe by THE LOSS OF OUR OWN."

THE COUNTRY KNOWS that Senator Johnson is unalterably opposed to the threatened repeal of the Arms Embargo in the existing Neutrality Law BECAUSE HE WANTS TO KEEP AMERICA AT PEACE.

He was one of the Senators who successfully resisted repeal in the last session. Repeal of the Embargo would have been UNWISE then, before the war in Europe began. And Senator Johnson knows that repeal would be UNNEUTRAL now, in the actual presence of war, and would certainly drag us into the war.

The California Senator is thus WHOLLY CONSISTENT in his continued opposition to the proposed Embargo repeal.

At the same time, as Senator Johnson points out in his statement, the Administration itself is WHOLLY INCONSISTENT in its present course.

"It must be remembered," he said, "that the law which THE ADMINISTRATION seeks so enthusiastically to repeal was THE SAME LAW that in 1937 WITH EQUAL ENTHUSIASM was passed through the Congress AT THE INSTANCE OF THIS SAME ADMINISTRATION."

In point of fact, the enactment in 1937 of the Neutrality Law, with its Embargo provision, was accepted by the country at large as a fulfillment of President Roosevelt's famous peace speech at Chautauqua, N. Y., in August of 1936.

In that speech, as Senator Johnson reminds us, the President warned the public that, in the event of another great foreign war, there would be "thousands of Americans who, seeking immediate riches—fools' gold—would attempt to break down or evade our neutrality."

YET NOW, the senator goes on to show, the Administration "demands the sale (of arms, munitions and implements of war) to certain favored ones (nations)."

"Sales to one side in the war," Senator Johnson continues, "and however it may be camouflaged, the repeal of the Embargo will mean that this nation is one-half in and one-half out of the war.

"Economically, our country becomes A PARTISAN, and it is but a step from our economic favoritism to ENLISTMENT OF OUR MANPOWER.

"All the ills so eloquently pictured in the President's Chautauqua address of 1936 would soon be upon us, and the making of money would become predominant—'fools' gold,' the President called it then. 'Fools' gold' it would be now.

"The blood letting which would inevitably follow, if we heeded those who cry aloud for repeal and great war profits, would bring ALL THE HORRORS AND ANGUISH OF WAR, just as it did 20 years ago."

How, then, is this calamity to be averted? By REAL neutrality, as Senator Johnson maintains.

In his Chautauqua speech, President Roosevelt said:

"If we face the choice of PROFITS or PEACE, the nation will answer—must answer—'we choose peace.'"

To this, Senator Johnson now rejoins:

"I take my stand with the Roosevelt of 1936, not with the Roosevelt of 1939. We are marching in the shadow now—DOWN THE ROAD TO WAR."

Human Side of News

By EDWIN C. HILL

NATURALLY, you can't expect an ambitious lad to stay long in the sneeze racket, or to be long content with such a trifling business as bundle-snatching.

Hymie Augen, who drops in occasionally to bring back some of our yesterdays, is inclined to think that Red Hook and Bowery lads of his day had a lot more enterprise than the boys of today. He is, on the whole, rather gloomy about our rising generation and doesn't think it will ever amount to much. It's like this:

"OVER AROUND the navy yard the other day, I glom an old friend of mine and I says howza boy? meaning his youngest kid. He wanted to hold out on me, but pretty soon I get the story. This mug is still snatching packages over in Brooklyn, and he's been at it for around five years now.

"I tell my friend that children aren't brought up the way they used to be—that in my day this boy would be getting himself some hot jewelry, or even a little satchel trick, and start getting up in the world. But I saw I was hurting his feelings, and there was nothing I could do about it anyway, so I just piped down and we talked about old times.

"The other day, I ran into Lumpy Joe Crocci and he tells me that the trouble he is having with his boy. This boy, Joe tells me, has a pair of pipes like Caruso and he wants to get into the singing and acting business.

"DEAD END" HUNTZ HALL
As Typical Bowery Bad Boy

"It was the first time I saw old Joe in years. About twenty years ago, Joe gets to running the Michele J. Conti Recreation club, quits fighting, etc., and brings up a nice little family. He tells me this boy had two years in college and then his music teacher said he should go on the stage right away and the boy starts burning up shoe leather trying to get a job and it's still no dice. The boy gets discouraged and old Joe is worrying himself sick about him.

"The boys around Miner's Bowery were never stopped by anything like that. Amateur night was a real business in those days. The system was to put in the fix with the judges and send in your man. They used to give cash prizes, and when you got the system organized in all the amateur night houses it made a nice little business.

"If you figured you wanted to be a hoofer or you thought you were pretty good singing 'My Pearl Is a Bowery Girl,' you got a send-in to the proper party and your turn got the prize money. That went mostly to the judges and the organization, but you got set in the acting business and you didn't have to get tracksore running around looking for a job.

"IT SURE did seem easier to get ahead in those days and young people just didn't sit around and smoke cigarettes, either. They were in there swinging.

"The youngsters are spoiled these days and a lot of them aren't brought up to behave right. When I was young a parent didn't think anything of whaling a kid plenty if he didn't behave. What this country needs is a length of wire-mesh hose hung behind every kitchen stove."

MY DAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—After a fairly long train trip, yesterday, we got off at Clarksburg, W. Va., to find a mild-mannered gentleman waiting for us. He murmured his name and that he had come to meet us and, as one photographer stopped us, he mildly said:

"Truly, I am not responsible for this. We kept your arrival absolutely secret."

I assured him that we could cope with ease with the situation and we were soon out of town, driving through the familiar West Virginia countryside, and our drive was very pleasant. The hills seem close to you here and the roads wind delightfully among them.

We passed first through a coal-mining section, more or less depressed, with bad housing and underfed children.

JUST before we reached Glenville, some badly-eroded hillsides stood out in the landscape. They have been denuded of trees and shortly there will be no soil on which anything can grow.

Strange that people will not realize that lack of soil conservation eventually means not only loss in land productivity but deterioration in human beings.

Our host proved gentle in word but not in thought, for he had plenty of convictions. Our talk ranged over a number of subjects and I could not refrain from asking him if he had seen "Good-Bye, Mr. Chips," for in many ways he reminded me of the charming English schoolmaster.

DESERTED FARM IN DUST BOWL REGION
Lack of Soil Conservation Disturbs First Lady

Glenville, where the State Teachers' College is situated, is a small town and the college must be the center of interest. The president and his wife are delightful and I wished I could have had a longer visit there.

AFTER the lecture we drove back to make our train and nearly missed it, because everyone took it for granted we must be going East instead of West.

We have another short stop-over in Chicago before we reach our destination—St. Paul, Minn.

Having been in academic surroundings, I want to tell you of a little volume which your whole family may enjoy and find useful. I was given a curious, rather haphazard education. I studied French, German and Latin grammar. My English grammar was sadly neglected.

My grandmotner had a theory, I think, that you learned to talk by ear, and that association with people who spoke English correctly was more important than learning out of a book.

Therefore, "Living Grammar," by Winifred Watson and Julius M. Nolte, with delightful illustrations by Eleanor Lewis, is a find for me, and you may find it a pleasant companion.

MOST PERPLEXED by the new Nazi-Russian pact is Mrs. Nijinsky, wife of the famous dancer . . . Nijinsky went mad in 1914 and had a complete mental blackout until a few years ago. Then, during his lucid interval, his wife tried to explain to him all the changes which had transpired—the movies, radio and government. Nijinsky expressed great surprise at the change in Russia, and asked constant questions about the Soviet Union—and how it differed from the Fascist regimes . . . Nijinsky then had another relapse, from which he has just recovered. Lonnie LeRoy

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21 All the time that you and I thought Baby LeRoy was the "Forgotten Man," Paramount has been quietly grooming him for a comeback. The baby, now seven years old, is called Lonnie LeRoy and he has been attending Page Military Academy, where he learned to ride, swim and box. Credit for keeping him from going to seed goes to Jack Moss, who has been testing the boy for these many months and having him educated for a continuation of his movie career.

His first picture will be "The Biscuit Eater," by James Street, with the little Negro boy star, Cordell Hickman, who was such a hit here in "The Swing Mikado." As a baby, young LeRoy gave W. C. Fields and Maurice Chevalier such competition that they said never again. This time Cordell and a dog will be the chief members of Baby LeRoy's cast—pardon me, I mean Lonnie.

Florence Rice

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Florence Rice and Robert Wilcox are reported dating the stork. If so, that will make Grantland Rice a granddaddy; Garbo, Dr. Hauser and Frey Brown, his manager, sought a secluded spot at the beach to keep cool; William Dieterle fainted after a day of directing "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" in the hot sun at the RKO ranch; Andrea Leeds and Bob Howard will say their I do's up North and not in Hollywood; William Haines is sick—another beat victim. Florida Chamber of Commerce please don't copy; the U. S. C. fraternities are giving Jackie Cooper a terrific rush since they found he expects to enter there; Una Merkel was the only cool girl in town yesterday. Marlene Dietrich threw pails of water on her to curb her movie temper.

• • •

MARY MARTIN took a bow at "The Drunkard," the West Coast favorite which is now playing its thousandth and some performance. She was the guest of William Lebaron and the Paul Jones; Annabella and her daughter reached home yesterday after a record-breaking trip on the Atlantic Clipper. More power to Annabella for her courage and devotion to her little girl; Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston are as torrid as the weather and looked as if they really meant it at the Villa Nova.

• • •

WENDY BARRIE and Edmund Anderson a Victor Hugo duet. And Ann Sheridan and Jean Negulesco are really becoming a habit if seven nights a week mean anything; Ingrid Bergman is said to have gone straight back to Germany from here to make a picture for Goebbels. He is in charge of all German movies, so she must have his approval.

DAILY STORY — The Lucky Trip

WHEN MY FIANCE was offered a job in South America with an oil company, I was reluctant to let him go because I dreaded the separation. But I knew it offered excellent possibilities for his advancement, and that eventually would be to my benefit as well as his.

For a while our letters flew thick and fast across the intervening 2,000 miles, and absence only seemed to make the heart grow fonder.

And then, suddenly, his letters ceased.

I felt the only thing that would satisfy me would be to see him face to face and talk things over.

Mr. Smith, who was Steve's branch superintendent, and Mrs. Smith had invited me to visit them in the small town in Colombia which was the staff headquarters. I decided to accept.

THE PLEASANTEST WAY to make the trip was to take one of the Caribbean cruises, with a stop-over in Colombia. There was a delightful crowd on board the ship and I thought I might as well enjoy life until the blow fell.

One young man in particular paid me a great deal of attention, and I found myself unconsciously comparing Bob with Steve. I kept him at arm's length when he began to make tender speeches in the moonlight. I did promise, however, to let him know when I returned from my Colombian visit.

Arrived at my destination, I was greeted at the dock by an embarrassed Mr. and Mrs. Smith, but no Steve. They were evasive when I inquired about him, simply saying that he was very well, but very busy. That first night we were invited to a dinner party, and there I discovered the reason for Steve's sudden defection. It was a "she," of course—a very lovely girl. AND the daughter of the company's general manager for the whole of South America.

STEVE brought me home that night, and squirmed around miserably, trying to alibi himself, until I finally took pity on him and told him that I understood.

I took the next boat for home, feeling as if the bottom had dropped out of my world. But I managed to pull myself together enough to send a wireless to Bob, telling him when my ship would arrive in New York.

This time I was met by a young man who welcomed me with open arms. Now there are two happy couples.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

THERE'S A STORY going the newspaper rounds. It seems that a certain distinguished American was dining alone in one of New York's famous night spots. Presently a waiter laid a sealed envelope before him, then discreetly withdrew. Curiously, the gentleman opened the envelope, to find this card:

"The management requests your quiet and immediate departure."

THE INDIGNANT gentleman naturally started to protest, then, realizing that a public scene could only cause further humiliation, he swallowed his resentment and withdrew. Presently another diner of equal refinement received a similar envelope and, though obviously furious, obeyed its request.

And, in due time, still another gentleman—and another—took his outraged departure, none of them noticing the increasingly hilarious gaffaws of a group of young people who were applauding the success of their latest practical joke which had for several nights in succession, victimized guests in various cafes, not to mention the loss and humiliation to their bewildered hosts.

Comical? Maybe. That depends on your point of view. Usually, I'm a pushover for Young America. Carping critics to the contrary, I think this current crop of Young Yanks is as fine a job as the old shop has ever turned out—brave, decent and thoroughly sound.

But I fail to find anything Screamingly Funny in this, or other recent examples of Juvenile Jinks.

There was, for instance, that gag recently perpetrated by a prominent young socialite and his pal. Having become beautifully bunned on bottled goods, these scintillating wags set forth in a high-powered car and proceeded to hang up an all-time record for general hooliganism.

EMERGING from his hangover the next morning, the petulant young prankster demanded to know what was "coming off here" and, on being told, patted a bored yawn into place and wondered, audibly:

"Why did I do that when I gotta 'nuff cash to buy this whole joint!"

He didn't know why he did it. But any mature citizen with the sense God gave a wood tick could have told him. He did it because he was a spoiled young brat, with no more regard for human rights than a wart hog—and far less manners.

Which goes for the other pranksters likewise, and all their conceited, cantankerous kind.

Trans-Lux Shows Spy Roundup

Straight out of the FBI files is the Edward G. Robinson starring film, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," opening a week's run at the Trans-Lux Theater tomorrow.

It is the story of the smashing of the Nazi spy ring by Leon G. Turrou when he was agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. As a result of his findings, four persons were convicted on espionage charges. Throughout the picture, it is made clear that the Reich government's bloodless war on America is being waged by means of its German-American bunds, parades of uniformed Nazis, rallies and summer camps.

"St. Louis Blues," the co-feature, has a cast headed by Dorothy Lamour and Lloyd Nolan.

Latest newsreels of world events complete the bill.

Carolyn Lee Amazes B. U. Test Director

By PEGGY DOYLE

Hollywood's littlest glamour-girl, four-year-old Carolyn Lee, gave evidence yesterday in this Hub of Culture and Athens of America that a Phi Beta Kappa key is as definitely in the cards for her as is an "Oscar."

The "Oscar" inkling came as a result of an earlier preview of the flyweight film star's first picture, Paramount's "Honeymoon in Bali," a scintillating comedy due soon at the Met, co-starring Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll, and a subsequent conversation with little Missy Lee.

"No," she said, with precocious precision, "I don't like myself in the picture. I didn't like myself in the 'rushes' either. I always kept thinking why didn't I remember to do exactly what Mister Griffith (the director) told me."

• • •

Sounds as if she had been reading the two-times Academy Award winner, Bette Davis, on the subject except that, smart as she is, Carolyn can't read yet. Meanwhile, she stacks up as a lot brighter than quantities of glamour-girls much older than she is who can read but are unable to see any flaws in their celluloid capers.

But about the Phi Beta Kappa key indication. Yesterday Carolyn was given a brace of mental ability tests at Boston University's department of student counseling and she amazed Professor Warren T. Powell, director, with the ease with which she solved problems designed for children twice her age.

The test to name objects—a cup, a cat, a locomotive, a penny—found her in complete possession of the facts.

Shown a paper doll, she was asked to name the parts of the body. She answered as readily and correctly as she did in "Honeymoon in Bali."

• • •

Next she was handed a box of wooden beads of various shapes, given a piece of string, asked to string in turn a square bead, a round bead, a triangular bead and so on which she did without error. This was a test of ability on shapes and finger dexterity.

"And this form-board," said Miss Marion Marsh, Professor Powell's assistant, indicating it in an array of miniature toys on the desk at which Caroline was seated, "this is designed for an older child."

"What is the test? It is to check a child's ability to recognize shapes. The objects are taken out of their compartments and the child is required to replace them in the proper spaces."

Tired of "answering questions about 'Honeymoon in Bali' and Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray" since her arrival at Boston airport the night before, the gilt-sized starlet told guests at yesterday's Copley-Plaza luncheon in her honor that she hoped to ride in the swan-boats.

Spencer Tracy Hit For Uptown Screen

"Stanley and Livingstone," with Spencer Tracy, twice winner of the Academy Award, in the role of the world's greatest newspaper reporter and Sir Cedric Hardwicke playing the famous explorer-missionary, comes to the Uptown screen tomorrow.

On the same bill will be "Unexpected Father," with Mischa Auer, Baby Sandy and Shirley Ross.

HOLLYWOOD'S littlest glamour girl, four-year-old Carolyn Lee, was Boston's guest yesterday. At a Copley-Plaza luncheon she and her pretty mother obliged with some dialogue from her first picture, "Honeymoon in Bali," which is coming to the Metropolitan's screen in a few weeks.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21—Mervyn and Doris Leroy are heading immediately for White Sulphur Springs and a month's rest for Mervyn—that is, if you can call shaping up two new pictures a rest.

His first task will be "Ziegfeld Girl," which is next on the Leroy production calendar. The other story tucked under his arm is "Today's Girl" which will be Lana Turner's official starring debut.

Everyone at M-G-M is completely sold on the idea that they have a new star in the red-headed Turnergal who certainly seems to have more than her share of S. A. She is very pretty and proves herself equally capable in "Dancing Co-Ed" but whether she's another Jean Harlow remains to be seen.

So many of their friends have been worried about Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon in London that I am passing on the news received in a letter by Bebe's mother. Phyllis Daniels breathed her first sigh of relief in weeks when she got direct word from them that they are safe, still living in the city and not at all frightened:

"Unbelievable as it may seem life here goes on much the same with no signs of hysteria."

Bebe and Ben are resuming their work on the vaudeville stage next week though there are only three legitimate theaters open in London. These two are the idols of the British theater-going public.

WHEN 'TOMORROW COMES' HELD SECOND WEEK AT KEITH'S

Dunne, Boyer Repeat 'Love Affair' Success

With the "Love Affair" team of Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer as the marquee lure, Keith Memorial is doing such satisfactory business with "When Tomorrow Comes" that the management announces a second week's holdover of this handsome Universal production.

It is a simple story that is lifted into the top-drawer brackets by John M. Stahl's expert direction, the excellent performances of the co-stars and the truly brilliant portrayal of Barbara O'Neil.

Miss Dunne is a waitress in a chain restaurant, where Boyer appears as a customer. There is mutual interest. With Miss Dunne's dumb-dora roommate, Nydia Westman, serving as an unwitting cupid, Boyer manages a second meeting at the waitresses' union meeting. Miss Dunne makes a speech at the meeting that has such dramatic effectiveness it swings the strike vote and Boyer's as well.

• • •

From then on, it's apparent that it's love. They go for a Long Island sail the following afternoon, are trapped in a hurricane as they are returning to New York, take refuge in a church. It looks like a blackout for them and they admit their love for each other.

Boyer, who has told her he is married, is attempting to tell her about his wife whose mentality has been affected in childbirth but Miss Dunne stops him. They are rescued and the next day she accidentally meets the wife, is distressed at discovering her condition.

This is not one of those happy-ever-after endings Hollywood has conditioned us to. For our money, the boy should get the girl when she is Irene Dunne and he is Charles Boyer. But the script, written by Dwight Taylor from James M. Cain's story, says no, and the fans would seem to agree. With women in the majority, they are flocking to it.

• • •

Basil Rathbone, who proved himself the ideal Holmes in "Hound of the Baskervilles," again portrays the celebrated detective.

A special Hollywood preview tomorrow evening at 9 brings Anna Neagle, beautiful British screen star, and Herbert Wilcox, celebrated English producer-director, to the Keith Memorial stage. Their presence behind Hub footlights is in connection with the showing of their latest screen collaboration, "Nurse Edith Cavell," which is their first made-in-Hollywood production. One showing only will be presented. The regular program will be resumed on Saturday.

TOMORROW and many more tomorrows will find Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer, shown here in a scene from their new hit, still at the Keith Memorial in "When Tomorrow Comes."

Poland 'Blackout'

Closeup newsreels of the Nazi "blackout" of Poland are now unreeling on South Station Theater's screen.

'Beau Geste' to Scollay, Modern

"Beau Geste," Paramount's remake of Herbert Brenon's impershinable cinema classic of 13 years ago, moves over to the Scollay and Modern screens tomorrow after having done excellent business at the Metropolitan and the Paramount and Fenway theaters.

The screen through the years has left little untold concerning the fascinating French Foreign Legion. And the fact that the present version of the story of the gallant Geste brothers, whose self-sacrifice, brotherly devotion and high nobility seem hardly credible, contrives to be a good cinema is all in favor of Massachusetts' William A. Wellman's direction and the capable performances of the manly cast.

Outstanding performance is Brian Donlevy's as the bestial Sergeant Markoff. Gary Cooper, Ray Milland and Robert Preston, do their best to make the heroic Gestes believable and occasionally achieve their purpose.

ELEANOR HARDING and Frances Sawtell had their fingers crossed until they were assured that New England would celebrate Thanksgiving on the date originally planned . . . for they counted on a Nov. 30th holiday and chose the Saturday of that week-end for their joint coming out party . . . They selected that date especially because all their college friends would be home for Thanksgiving holidays and able to attend their party on Dec. 2.

The affair will be a tea dance at The Country Club . . . Frances may have the privilege of two week-end holidays from Vassar during November, depending on when the college authorities decide to celebrate the traditional day of feasting.

The girls are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Harding, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sawtell of Chestnut Hill . . .

AND STILL THEY COME—Parties for September brides . . . Yesterday Ruth Williams and the bridesmaids who will precede her down the aisle of Emmanuel Church Saturday for her wedding to Robert H. Strange covered a lot of territory in their partying . . .

Peggy Paine, one of the brdiesmaids gave a luncheon and linen shower for the bride-to-be, at the Paine summer home in Duxbury and from there Ruth came in town to open some more packages at a tea and bath shower given by Elizabeth Marshall, the maid of honor . . .

Last evening, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Proctor, 3d gave a dinner party for the bridesmaids and ushers . . .

The bride-to-be, a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John T. Williams of Beacon st. . . . She made her debut in 1933 and graduated from Vassar in 1937 . . .

Mr. Strange, son of Mrv and Mrs. Vivian Peabody Strange of Salt Lake City and Andover, New Brunswick, is in business in Boston . . . He graduated from Leland Stanford University and also attended Oxford University . . .

War-Time Honeymoon

INSTEAD OF A LITTLE HOUSE in the shadow of the famous Acropolis, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus Swift, Jr., will occupy an apartment in Cambridge for the first winter of their married life . . . The bridegroom, is a member of the famous packing family of Chicago and nephew of Mr. and Mrs. George Swift of Commonwealth ave. . . .

He was enrolled for graduate courses in archaeology at the University of Athens and right after their wedding the couple sailed from New York on the first lap of what was to have been their honeymoon trip to Greece . . . The war had not become an actuality at that time, but the crisis was so serious that they decided to call off the trip and left the boat when it reached Boston . . . While here they visited the George Swifts at their summer home in Manchester and made arrangements for the bridegroom to resume his archaeological studies at Harvard . . . At present they are in Chicago packing up their wedding presents and other effects to add a cheery note to their new home in the East . . .

SEEN ABOUT TOWN . . . Theodore Chase just caught the New York boat on the nick of time the other evening . . . He and his wife, who will be remembered as the former Dorothea Newman, went on the cruise of the Worlds Fair which was arranged by a group of Bostonians as an enjoyable way of raising money for the New England Grenfell Association . . .

Ted and his wife were the last ones on board, after Dorothea had spent a half hour on the dock, alternately looking at the clock or the approaching taxis to see if he was coming . . .

The William Coxes were down at the dock to wave goodbye to their two youngsters who sailed on the cruise with their nurse. . .

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Questions concerning foods, sanitation, and health will be answered only if a stamped, addressed envelope accompanies your request. No exceptions can be made to this rule. Prescriptional advice can not be given, nor can food or drug samples be analyzed. Address Dr. Walter H. Eddy, 57th street at 8th ave., New York city.

Little Loss of Vitamin C

"Is it true that if, in making cranberry jelly, one rubs the berries through the sieve while they are still hot, almost all the vitamin C is lost; but if the cranberries are cold before sieving, no such destruction takes place?"

Mrs. C. L. W.

Vitamin C is destroyed by contact with air, and heat increases the rate of destruction. I suppose that somebody thought that by breaking up the cranberries in the sieve so that they came into contact with air present, there would be a higher score of destruction of the vitamin, I suspect, however, that the degree of this difference between the hot and cold sieving would be so small as to be hardly detectable.

Evaporated Milks for Children

"Will you please advise me about the value of canned milk as compared with raw milk in the feeding of a nine-year-old boy?"

Mrs. C. L. B.

In the process of evaporating milk the fat particles are very finely divided; consequently milk fat in evaporated milks is particularly easy to digest. It is for that reason that they are so frequently used in fat feeding today. There is no loss of the essential nutrients of milk through the evaporating process, so from the nutritive standpoint it is a quite satisfactory substitute for fresh milk.

Graniteware is Safe

"I have been told that when a graniteware or enamelware pan is chipped, a deadly poison is released."

Mrs. T. C.

Years ago lead was used in enamelware, and there was some danger of this getting into food But modern enamels do not contain any toxic metal, so there is no poison to be released. The only effect of chipping the metal is to expose the iron of which the dish is made; as no harm is derivable from using an iron kettle, foodstuff cooked in such a container is entirely safe to eat.

Good Vitamin Source

"Kindly tell me the food value of avocados."

Mrs. R. B.

The relatively high fat content of the avocado makes it a richer source of calories than most fruits. A large apple or orange contains 100 calories; a medium-sized avocado contains 205 calories. The avocado is a good source of vitamins A, B, and G, but not so good a source of vitamin C as the orange or tomato.

Roquefort Cheese Is Not Poisonous

"Please tell me if Roquefort cheese is poisonous. I have been told that the green mold is caused by copper wires and that they are taken out before the cheese is sold to customers."

Mrs. T. G.

The green substance in Roquefort cheese is an edible green mold planted in the cheese and allowed to develop under suitable conditions. Its presence gives the characteristic flavor, and it is perfectly edible and nonpoisonous.

VITAMIN A is the anti-xerophthalmic vitamin, because its omission from the diet results in an eye disease called xerophthalmia. It is a component of butter fat and egg yolk. It is also present in the green leaves of plants, in certain roots especially those with yellow color (carrots, sweet potatoes, etc.), and to a more abundant degree in fish oils, such as cod liver oil.

Inspired Fish Cookery

By MARTHA LEE

There is an old recipe for Rabbit Stew which begins: "First catch your hare," so let's just apply it to the season's trend in cookery and see what happens. First catch your fish! That part is easy. You can either do it personally or go leisurely angling to the nearest fish market and make your choice.

We are told that fish eating goes back to antiquity and so, of course, the so-called art if fish cookery has undergone changes through the years.

THE FISHERY COUNCIL

Fish had endured undeserved contumely because in the past too many cooks overcooked it, dried up its delicious juices, impaired its distinctive flavor and made all fish taste alike. In the ordinary home fish has been "cooked to death," without thought of artistry. So, with the purpose of instructing the average homemaker in the value of fish as a food and acquainting her with proper methods of cooking, serving, etc., the Fishery Council of New York and the Middle Atlantic area has come into being—and we are looking forward to its branching out right here in our own city.

The Fishery Council is interested in giving you all the information about seafood you may desire. All seafood contains concentrated and liberal quantities of minerals, proteins and vitamins and is noteworthy for its health-giving qualities.

There are many varieties of fish available, and there are myriads of ways to cook them. Everyone in the family can be pleased. Monotony, the thief of gustatorial pleasure, is banished.

FRESH CODFISH

Cod, a dry meated fish, is distinguished from haddock by a white lateral line. The scrod (young cod) are about one pound in weight and are sold whole or filleted. Market cod is from four to seven pounds, sold whole or sliced. Steak cod, nine to 30 pounds, sold in steaks or slices. The whole fish can be boiled or baked. Steaks and fillets are sauteed and broiled. Cod heads are sold for soup. And to boil or bake. The tongues and sounds are sold either fresh or brined. The roe is sold by the pound.

COD STEAKS WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

Put 6 small or 3 large steaks in oiled baking dish. Chop small onion and ¼ lb. mushrooms. Cook in 6 tbsp. water and 3 tbsp. butter, 3 min. Add 3 tbsp. flour and 2 cups milk. When boiling, season with salt and pepper. Pour over fish. Dust top with paprika. Bake about 25 minutes in moderate oven until fish is tender.

FRESH HADDOCK

Haddock has firm, white flaky flesh and is distinguished from cod by a black lateral line, and black spot on body near head. Sold whole, filleted or smoked. Haddock run from 3 to 6 lbs., and are often larger. Whole fish are baked or boiled. Heads are made into soup and baked.

STUFFED HADDOCK

Make stuffing of: 2 cups soft bread crumbs, 2 pimentos, chopped and 1 small onion minced and ¼ cup diced celery cooked in 2 tbsp. butter until soft. Add salt and pepper to taste. Add milk until the stuffing is moist enough to hold together. Then stuff fish, sew up and put in oiled pan. Brush fish with fat. Bake in hot oven until fish is tender, about 20 minutes per pound. Slice for serving.

MACKEREL

Mackerel is a fat fish, from ¾ to 3 pounds in weight. Sold fresh (whole or filleted,) pickled, salted, smoked and canned. Can be cooked many ways.

BROILED MACKEREL MAITRE D'HOTEL

Split mackerel for broiling or use fillets. Brush with oil. Broil on flesh side, turn and brush with oil; brown. Spread this sauce on fish. Cream 2 tbsp. butter, season with salt, pepper, cayenne. Add 1 tbsp. of lemon juice and 1 tbsp. finely minced parsley.

OREGON SALMON

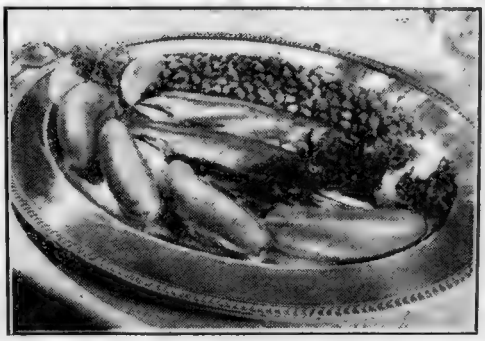
Place 1 inch thick slices of salmon on oiled baking dish. Season with salt, pepper and few drops of lemon juice. Sprinkle with chopped onion, chopped mushrooms and a little chopped parsley. Bake from 20 to 25 min.

BROILED FINNAN HADDIE

Brush flesh side with melted fat; brown in broiler. Turn fish, brush skin side with fat and brown. Serve with butter sauce; 2 tbsp butter melted, 1 tbsp. chopped parsley, 1 tbsp. lemon juice added drop by drop.

HALIBUT CREOLE

Place halibut steak in oiled shallow baking pan. Dot fish with butter; season with salt, pepper, sprinkle with finely minced onion, green pepper. Cover with layer of dry bread crumbs. Bake in hot oven until vegetables are soft and beginning to brown.



MACKEREL, broiled to a turn, garnished with lemon quarters, lettuce and parsley and served with green peas and broiled bananas, offers a delectable meal that will be relished by every member of the family.

Gossip Threatens Friendship

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 19 years old and a freshman in college. For the past year I have enjoyed the friendship of a nice girl who is only 15 years old. We like and respect each other, and realize that years must lie before us if and when our friendship should become more serious.

Our parents until recently have given their consent to our seeing each other. But gossip, that ever present factor, must be considered. It seems so unfair, but it has led my mother to protest our friendship, and I'm afraid this may not only hurt the girl, but her family, too. Should my mother be swayed by this ideal talk, or is there another method by which we might reach a happier solution?

FRESHMAN.

Doubtless in your English class the quotation: 'Be thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny," has impressed you with Shakespeare's wisdom. And when gossip is the only refuge of unemployed minds, it seems to me well to disregard it.

Considering the girl's tender age, your mother may feel that in all kindness to the girl, it's up to her to stop idle talk by having you see less of her.

An innocent friendship between a boy and a girl seems to me advantageous to both. And my best advice to you is to counsel patience, until the "tabbies" have found new victims, when your mother will very probably relent.

Parents Should Accept Girl's Friends

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Finally I've met the man I had hoped to meet for ages. It seems as if he were waiting for me also, because he made a date right away, or asked me for one. But I had to refuse him because I have that kind of parents. When a girl can't accept a date she's just a "flat tire." Since then he has invited me out twice, but I have had to refuse him each time. Now I avoid him, which is a tough break for me. He's a fine upright young man, and I don't see why I can't have him over. N. O.

Age may have something to do with your parents' refusal to allow you to have a boy friend. If you are 14 years of age, I must say your parents have something to say about letting you make dates, but if you are 17 or 18, I think it's too bad that you are not allowed to bring young men to the house to call.

As I have said many times in this column, and will probably say many times more, I think it's a great mistake for parents not to know their sons' and daughters' friends.

You Can Be Beautiful

Three-Minute Clearing Facial

By ARLINE GOULD

THERE IS no earthly excuse for anyone to have the kind of skin which reveals speckled imperfections when face powder departs . . . as all face powders do, sooner or later! Not in this day and age when there is a herbal cream mask which not only refreshes the whole face and smoothes out tired lines, but has a forceful action on blackheads that seems actually to pull them from their stubbornly-held positions.

We've found a new cream mask that's richly spicy from the herbal extracts that are used in it. And coincidentally we've discovered that the $3.30 size of it is going on a one-week special of $1.25 starting this Saturday.

You might think that this, because of its drastic action, is not a gentle cosmetic. Actually it is. So much so that it has been tested and found wonderful for the very young skins that have such a marked tendency to acquire blackheads. It saves all the harmful handling of delicate young tissues that might ordinarily be regarded as the only way to rid a teen skin of blackheads.

This is a three-minute mask, so you haven't the excuse of busy days and evenings. And if you use it all over the face before going out, you'll find that it leaves the skin soft, moistly smooth and refreshed.

If you'd like to learn about this remarkable line-smoothing and blemish-evicting herbal cream mask, a $3.30 jar for $1.25 for one week, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five-thirty, or write, inclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Wear the Hat?

DEAR MISS BEECKMAN:

I am giving a bridge-luncheon at a hotel and I am informed that it is proper for the hostess to remove her hat while the guests wear theirs. At a previous party I wore my hat during the luncheon but removed it when we started to play cards and all of my guests did likewise. I would like to know if this is considered bad form. R.

The hostess who gives a bridge-luncheon in a hotel should keep her hat on during the luncheon as her guests should also. Too, it is better form for her also to wear her hat during the bridge, but if she does not wish to, she needn't.

The PRIVATE LIFE of Dr. Hilary

by HENRY and SYLVIA LIEFERANT
AUTHORS OF "DOCTORS' WIVES"

And so began the daily custom of lunching with Phoebe. They made a ceremony of it, laughing together and exchanging secrets.

"HELLO, NORA!" Tess beamed. "Martin didn't say you were going to be here. It's always a surprise to see you anywhere—by daylight. And Phoebe—Phoebe Dixon. Imagine my astonishment when Martin told me yesterday that the child was still in the hospital."

Phoebe was bewildered but childishly gracious. Nora moved to the window to give Tess her chair, and looking down into the park, she began to speculate. Martin!

He hadn't told her that he had talked to Tess. Why not?

Yet Tess had not been enjoined to secrecy.

She barely heard what Tess was saying, something about a job soon to be open, or open now to be kept so for Phoebe. It had something to do with sketching jewelry, very photographic work.

Customers wanted to see how their pieces were really going to look when finished. If Phoebe had never done it, she could no doubt learn quickly. There was nothing subversive here.

Tess had said she wanted to do something for Phoebe, and she never talked of her kindnesses in advance. And Martin was driving too hard, merely growing forgetful. He and Tess might have had a secret conversation, probably some scheme for her birthday.

On her part she had nothing to conceal, and as they sat down to dinner that night she mentioned that she had seen Phoebe.

"You saw Phoebe?" he repeated crossly.

It was certainly time to do something when he used that tone. "Was there anything wrong in that, Martin? I'd rather neglected her. Didn't you want her to have visitors?"

He had speared an oyster and swallowed it before he answered. She waited for him to mention Tess. She was sure Tess had told him of her planned visit. He merely said, "It was quite all right," because he knew from Phoebe, whom he had seen at 6, that Nora and Tess had met in her room. He did not know why Nora's candid statement had caught him sharply.

STUBBORNNESS

"I think, Martin," Nora proceeded, attacking the matter directly, "that we can get her back to her room and send a visiting nurse in every day."

"That place!" he exclaimed, his eyes on the oysters.

Nora realized that in trying to win Martin over in the beginning, she had perhaps exaggerated the drabness of Phoebe's quarters. The girl herself found no fault with them, and it was no worse than the place where they had begun their married life.

"We can find a cheerier one."

"The fact is, she's only just beginning to eat anything like food. It has to be specially cooked and watched."

"How about the Mid-City convalescent home at Mt. Kisco? You can get her in there now."

He had finished his oysters and looked up. "It has that social service atmosphere you object to. I can hardly get her in there after she's been a private patient. That place is straight charity only."

That was true, yet the stubbornness of his resistance informed her that he could be persuaded to make some change. Through the next course they talked trivia, scarcely meeting each other's eyes. Nora's mind churned, examined, rejected all sorts of plans. Finally she put one to him:

"How about transferring her to Mentone Towers?"

"That's an idea, Nora."

She could have cried at the relief in his tone, controlled as it was. "It has all the advantages of a sanitarium and a convalescent home. Terrace close to the sky, modern facilities. That's a lot of money saved, Martin. I've been so miserably contrite over the expenditure."

"I'll do it tomorrow. Wonderful idea, Say, Nora, how about a movie tonight? Is there something improbable in the neighborhood, a Western or a mystery thriller? Anything that doesn't make sense."

She felt positively smug with victory. He was only Peter grown up, from whatever angle she viewed him. A fretful youngster intent upon his own way until he was beaten down with a belter one. A proud youngster, too. He had only been strutting before her, wanting to prove his generosity. She should not have withheld her suggestions until now.

Mentone Towers was the small private hospital which occupied the three top floors in the building where Martin had his office. Operated for the convenience of the doctors in the building, it nevertheless offered attractions to short-term patients. The equipment was of the newest, the service genial.

REST HOME

The doctors used it mostly for overnight cases, three-day tonsillectomies, children with broken arms who had to be kept in bed, minor operations, medical cases where frequent treatments and drainings were advisable the first few days.

No maternity cases were accepted, and few extended surgical ones, though there was no rule against the latter. The staff was competent, the fees reasonable.

Consisting only of private and semi-private rooms, Mentone Towers had the atmosphere of a rest home run by retired nurses, with a touch of boarding-school informality. Ambulant patients visited in each other's room, took meals together, had a member of the family to lunch. Visitors were permitted at any time, and in the warm weather the patients exchanged histories on the terrace.

The next morning, garlanded with affectionate good-byes, admonitions and prognostications from the Brigham sisters, Phoebe was transferred to Mentone Towers in an ambulance. The day Brigham had summoned the night Brigham from sleep to bid farewell to the patient, and Skean had come to escort Phoebe.

Martin had a full schedule that morning but no new patients, so he had delegated Skean to the task. She knew her errant foolishness—the ambulance driver and nurse might easily have effected the transfer, but she supposed she ought to be satisfied that Dr. Hilary hadn't lost his sense of dignity and himself conducted Phoebe to her new room.

Phoebe was installed in a corner room with three windows, a plum-colored rug and plum draperies, semi-private as Nora had advised. Skean made a wager with herself that no patient would ever be assigned to the other bed.

At the earliest opportunity, Skean reported the change to Martin.

"Did you tell Miss Dixon I'll be up after may last patient?" he asked.

"I didn't do any such thing." Skean replied with tight lips. "You know, Doctor, you haven't dictated for days. Your notes are all piled up."

"All right. I'll just take a look upstairs when I'm finished here. Tell Miss Crowden to be ready for me."

"She always is," Skean pointed out.

"Are you getting old, Skean, that a little break in routine makes you cross?" Martin said. "Or was it beneath your dignity to ride ambulance again?"

"I'm sorry, doctor."

He looked at her and laughed.

NEW HOPE

Immediately Phoebe began to take heart. She said the first day, "Something strange happened after my first nap here. All these weeks I haven't been able to remember how I looked before I was taken sick. I hadn't any pattern to go by. It seemed to me I'd always been bony and starved, but when I awoke I could see myself clearly as I was when I came to New York. I'll be well soon, Dr. Hilary."

"Good! Do you always work by pattern?"

"I think all artists do—even inexpert ones like me. We have to see a design in order to work toward it."

"You're not so far afield, Phoebe," Martin said. "That's the way I work. I always see the procedure of operation, the technique, the fault corrected before I start."

Martin found it, indeed, so convenient to step into the elevator and merely ride to the twentieth floor, that he fell into the habit of doing so whenever he wanted a break in his activity.

One day he walked in just as Phoebe was having her lunch. He ordered a tray for himself, and so began the daily custom of lunching with Phoebe. Soon he was having a cup of tea with her when she had her early supper.

They made a ceremony out of those occasions, laughing together, exchanging secrets which weren't secrets, discussing events, mimicking other forms of tea parties; the rector coming to tea, Aunt Miranda at tea, the Mad Hatter's tea party, a Greenwich Village tea.

Is Martin becoming attached to Phoebe? Will he miss her when she leaves the hospital? Don't miss tomorrow's chapter.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking those acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Mass. Co-op. Banks Have Fine Record

The 51st annual convention of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League, being held at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, provides an excellent and timely opportunity for a review of one of the most sparkling records of public service in U. S. banking annals . . .

THE HISTORY . . . Of co-operatives is studied with superlative performances . . . Most impressive of which is the fact no shareholder has ever lost a penny of savings or investment . . . The banks are state chartered and under the supervision of the banking department . . . And are widely noted for their safety and favorable dividends . . . Throughout the 62 years of their existence thousands of working people have been extended through their facilities the advantages of high grade investment . . . And, more important, the priceless privilege of acquiring a home on a rent-like payment basis . . .

• • •

PRIMARY . . . Purpose of Massachusetts Co-operatives now, as always, is to encourage thrift and home ownership . . . First by making it possible for people of limited means to accumulate money conveniently out of income through systematic monthly saving . . . And second to finance home buying or building on an economical basis providing for gradual retirement of mortgage debt by small monthly payments . . . And figures attest to the need and desire of the public for the service offered . . . There are 338,000 shareholders owning shares with a total value of over $357,284,500 . . . And the banks have 109,550 mortgages in force for a total of over $290,000,000 . . .

• • •

TIME . . . Is the test of any record . . . But current results are a measure of future prospects . . . While providing a line on the regard with which services are held . . . And the fact 50 per cent of the mortgages recorded by thrift and loan institutions in this state during the past year, or more, have been those of co-operative banks indicate more clearly than anything else outstanding popularity . . . And public esteem . . . A matter of pride and appreciation for the more than one thousand officers holding their annual convention at Swampscott . . .

• • •

ROTATION . . . And on a somewhat selective basis is a likely characteristic of the stock market from now on . . . The pell mell rush of two weeks ago is ended . . . And group action shows signs of prevailing . . . Rails, oils, steels, coppers, mail orders and electrical equipments will take turns in leading the list upward . . . For those in constant touch with the market it means trading opportunities . . . For semi and full investment positions it means spells of quiet and light reaction . . . And for all it suggests close adherence to a policy of only picking up stock on dips . . . Following strength with orders is not as logical as it was two weeks ago . . .

• • •

RAILROAD . . . Equipment buying reports have stirred up interest in stocks of the group . . . One of the fastest moving of them all when conditions are right . . . Westinghouse Air Brake, American Car, Pullman are the favored issues . . . With American, Lima and Baldwin in a locomotive bracket by themselves . . . Lima would be our pick during soft spots . . . Of the low priced issues Symington and Budd look the best at present . . . Speculative, to be sure, but probably no more so than many another low priced stock . . .

• • •

FOREIGN TRADERS . . . of the Boston metropolitan area will gather at a dinner conference at the Chamber of Commerce the evening of September 26 . . . To discuss the complicated problems surrounding the selling and shipment of merchandise created by the European War . . . The conference has been called by the Committee on Foreign Trade of the Boston Chamber of Commerce . . . The principal speaker will be Eugene P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade Council of New York, who will speak on "New Trade Horizons for New England."

• • •

IRVING T. SORGE . . . Chairman of the Chamber's Committee on Foreign Trade, will preside at the dinner and will also speak on "The Effect on Ocean Transport and Shipping" . . . Among other talks will be "Financing Foreign Trade Under War Conditions," by W. Latimer Gray, vice president of the First National Bank of Boston . . . "The Sales Executive's Problems in Foreign Trade Today," by Donald J. Moore, foreign trade adviser and former president, New England Export Club . . . Delegations of business men from Providence, Worcester and Springfield will attend.

"Sneezy" Order

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP)—An order "to be sneezed at" was reported today by Front Street brokers.

It was a call for immediate delivery to the Netherlands of half a million pounds of black pepper.

Ordinarily, the Netherlands buys from Java, its possession, but brokers said lack of shipping facilities at present prevented.

Bank of England Declares Dividend

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP)—The little old lady of Threadneedle st the Bank of England—serenely conducting business as usual, declared today the same dividend of 6 per cent, less tax, which has been paid twice every year since 1923.

The bank's profits for the half year ended Aug. 31 were reported at £633,923 (about $2,494,487 at today's rate of exchange) "after making provision for all contingencies." The profit for the same half year in 1938 was £633,727.

The announcement was made at what is known as the "general court" of the bank.

When one director praised the decision to pay the dividend despite the war and said "expenses are going up in every direction," Montague Norman, governor, said with his usual loquacity: "They are."

STOCKS LIFTED BY FAST BUYING MOVE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP)—A brief but fast buying flurry, centering on rail equipments, aircrafts and specialties, gave the stock market an upward push today after the list had shown much hesitancy.

The turnabout came just after mid-day and selected issues, including many of the war babies that had lagged at the start, posted gains of 1 to 3 points. The ticker tape was late for a while, then activity died down appreciably. Near the final hour, dealings were exceptionally listless and prices were off from the best in most cases. Transfers were at the rate of about 1,500,000 shares.

Turning the tide, brokers said, were reports in the boardrooms that congressional repeal of the arms embargo was now assured, despite probability of considerable debate after the special session gets under way and the President addresses the body on the neutrality law.

News from European fronts was watched closely, but bulletins apparently failed to stir financial sentiment much either way The main bolstering influence was seen in highly optimistic prospects for domestic business and industry.

Foreign markets were a trifle mixed. Bonds and commodities were narrowly irregular, although grains recovered.

Among climbing stocks were Pullman, Westinghouse Airbrake, Eastman Kodak, duPont, Johns-Manville, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, U. S. Rubber, Chrysler, General Motors, Anaconda, Westinghouse Electric and J. I. Case.

Supported for modest advances in the curb were Electric Bond & Share, American Gas, American Cyanamid "B" and Sherwin Williams.

Market Bulletins

WAR BOOSTS PRICES

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP)—Commodities useful as war stores continued in demand, spurred by purchasing of warring and neutral powers and by domestic demand. Some further price rises were reported. Foreign buying of foodstuffs was especially noticed in this country, Canada and Argentina. Besides numerous inquiries actual transactions were reported in substantial volume, especially in wheat, sugar, beef, edible oils, rubber, hides and shellac.

WOOL PRICES STRONG

Business was fairly active on the Boston wool market today and prices were very strong. Moderate advances in prices were realized on occasion sales.

Carloadings Reach New 1939 Peak

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—Freight car loadings reached a 1939 high in the week ended Sept. 16.

The Association of American Railroads reported today that loadings of revenue freight in that week totaled 805,733 cars.

This compared with 660,163 in the corresponding 1937 week when loadings totaled 822,795 cars.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COMMISSION
PWA Docket No. Mass. 1555-F
Mass. State Project No. D-210
Sealed proposals for Overpass and Traffic Circle at Cottage Farm Bridge, Section 4, Landscaping at Cottage Farm Bridge, Memorial Drive, Cambridge, prepared on the prescribed forms and in accordance with instruction therein will be received at the Metropolitan District Commission at Room 805, 20 Somerset Street, Boston, Mass., until 1 o'clock P. M., Standard Time, Thursday, October 5, 1939. These proposals will be carried in a sealed container to the Public Hearing Room on the 8th floor at 20 Somerset Street, Boston, directly and at that time and place publicly opened and read aloud. Each proposal must be in a sealed envelope endorsed with the name of the bidder and "Overpass and Traffic Circle at Cottage Farm Bridge, Contract 4, Landscaping at Cottage Farm Bridge, Memorial Drive, Cambridge." Plans, specifications and other contract documents may be examined at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Parks Division, seventh floor, 20 Somerset Street, Boston, without charge and may be secured at this place upon deposit payment of $2.00. The full amount of the deposit for one set of documents will be refunded to each actual bidder upon return of all documents in good condition within 15 days after the opening of bids. Other deposits will be refunded, with deductions not exceeding the actual cost of reproduction of the drawings upon return of all documents in good condition within 15 days after the opening of bids. Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for the sum of $225 made payable to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts or a properly executed bid bond for the sum of $225 on the form prescribed. All checks or bid bonds, except those of the three low bidders, will be returned within seven (7) days after the date upon which bids are opened. The checks or bid bonds of the three low bidders except that of the bidder to whom the contract is awarded, will be returned within seven (7) days after the awarding of the contract. The check or bid bonds of the successful bidder will be returned within five days after the execution of the contract. The project is to be constructed under the terms of Chapter 345, Mass. Acts of 1933 as amended. The work contemplated in this proposal is located in Cambridge and embraces Landscaping at Cottage Farm Bridge, Memorial Drive. Attention is called to the fact that a schedule of minimum wage rates, as established for the project by the Commission of Labor and Industries under provisions of Chapter 461 of the Acts of 1933, is annexed to the contract agreement. No bids may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids, for at least thirty (30) days. A surety bond in an amount equal to one hundred (100) per cent of the contract price will be required. The right is reserved by the Commonwealth to reject any or all bids or to waive informalities. A proposal which includes for any unit price item a bid that is abnormally low or high may be rejected as unbalanced. The amount estimated to be available for this contract is $4,500.
WILLIAM E. WHITTAKER, Secretary.

MONEY TO LOAN

NOW! A NEW LOAN PLAN
Pick your own monthly repayment
You can borrow from $20 to $300 without asking others to sign with you. Decide on the amount of cash you need, then choose the payment which suits your budget. You may repay in 2 to 20 months, as your income permits. Below is a table showing sample repayment schedules. Other amounts and other plans are available. Note how you may repay your loan in a very few months to keep the cost to a minimum. Note, also, what small payments can be made if you wish.

Cash Loan You Get	Amount you pay back each month (including all charges) for following periods
	2 mos.	4 mos.	6 mos.	8 mos.	10 mos.	12 mos.	16 mos.	20 mos.
$ 50	$25.94	$13.29	$ 9.08	$ 6.97	$ 5.71	$ 4.87
100	51.88	26.58	18.15	13.95	11.43	9.75	$ 7.66	$ 6.41
150	77.82	39.87	27.23	20.92	17.14	14.62	11.49	9.62
200	103.77	53.16	36.31	27.89	22.85	19.50	15.32	12.83
300	155.65	79.75	54.46	41.84	34.28	29.25	22.98	19.24

This table is based on prompt repayment. Payments may be made in advance of the day they are due, at any time you wish. Advance payment reduces the cost of your loan proportionately, since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments are calculated at Hour-hold rate of 2½% per month, which is the lowest maximum Massachusetts law permits.

'REVERES' READY FOR MARCH

The Massachusetts Congressional delegation united today for retention of the arms embargo act while hundreds of modern "Paul Reveres" made ready for a march on Washington to back them up.

Almost to a man, Bay State Senators and Repesentatives promised to hold out for the strictest kind of neutrality legislation, determined to keep Americans out of Europe's battlefields.

And while Senator David I. Walsh and Congressman George Holden Tinkham voiced opposition to any change in arms embargo, ranks of the Paul Reveres were steadily swelling at home.

The group of protestors, organized on the appeal of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, will entrain for Washington tomorrow night.

Besides the Boston group, other Paul Reveres made ready to depart by motor and bus. All are pledged to protest any change in the neutrality laws during the special session of Congress which begins today.

Senator Lodge declared he had a plan of his own to "keep this nation at peace" but refused to reveal details until he lays it before Congress.

"This country wants peace," Lodge said. "I am going to do the best I can to gain peace. The plan which I will advocate, will be, I believe, an effective device to keep this country at peace."

Senator Walsh also registered his "unequivocal opposition to any change in the present neutrality laws."

Congressman Tinkham was another to oppose any lifting of the arms ban.

"I am opposed to the United States going to war in Europe again," Tinkham said. "I shall vote against any proposal to repeal the arms embargo."

Hub's Television Girl To Get National Test

Boston's own "Television Girl"—that fortunate young lady who is finally chosen because of her extraordinary talent, plus the "photogenic" qualities required for success before the televisor will have a chance to demonstrate her audible quality on a coast-to-coast blue network of the National Broadcasting Co. through Station WBZ, it was announced today.

In addition she will be taken to New York, feted, and there given an opportunity to show her photogenic worth in a regularly scheduled television broadcast from Radio City.

Scores of young women have entered the tests, which are being conducted by WBZ and Jordan, Marsh and Co.

Audition hours at the Hotel Bradford studios of WBZ are from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. daily. There voice and talent tests are made, and those selected then appear before the Jordan, Marsh televisor.

Judges select six winners each day, who will appear in the semi-finals, which begin in the Jordan Marsh television studios Friday.

Finalists will be broadcast from the radio station.

AUSTEN LAKE

Ode to Autumn, or Adventure in Melancholia

THE AIR IS SWEET WITH WOOD SMOKE, smouldering leaves and the faint reek of nature's incense. The impetuous heat of summer is cooled by first frosts and the brash, youthful greens of field and forest are giving way to the ochres, russets and purples of late September. The bold eye of the summer sun grows dim and sleepy. Harvest husks dry in the hedgerows. The wind begins to whisper of memory and Time leans on its scythe, waiting for winter. Autumn begins today and autumn is the time to dream.

AUSTEN LAKE

I passed down Boylston Street this morning, past the old portico of the hotel where visiting ball players used to be seen between April and October, sunning themselves like hens against a sunny wall. Nowadays the ball teams have scattered to the crystal and gilt of rival taverns and passersby no longer see the players mooning the morning hours away, motionless as bisque dolls and bending their glazed eyeballs on the street traffic.

There was something betokening the season, something that reeked of lavender and rosemary and the odor of regret in the change of this old meeting spot, which for half a century has spread its broad steps on upper Boylston Street like the apron of a prim grandmother—something which speaks of maidenhair fern, the social dignities of the Civil War, the cool and quiet fragrance of a cider cellar and the memorable whiffs from Aunt Martha's cookie crock.

For the ancient steps are curiously linked with Boston's baseball legend. Famed characters like John McGraw, Ty Cobb, Christy Mathewson and Frank Chance used to sprawl there. And through its twilighted hallways we of the press once walked on carpets thick as lichen, as down memory's little lane, to tap at Miller Huggins' door and find the little gnome in his worn blue dressing gown, smoking his two-quart pipe. Ah me, the autumn's got me!

Players Harder to Reach Now

NOWADAYS, IN SEASON, WE MEET THE ball players by appointment. The secretarial chirp of some switchboard Argus demands to know your business with the celebrities. The freemasonary of other years has gone. But in the old days you took the bird cage elevator and rumbled up with rheumatic creaks to waken Babe Ruth or George Sisler or Walter Johnson, who climbed out of their mahogany sleigh-beds and twisted a one-pound key in a keyhole that was made for full vision peeking. Ah me! All those things have changed now.

Most of all I remember the quiet hours spent with Connie Mack in surroundings of Hepplewhite and Chippendale which so fitted his old testament character. For during his first 37 years of coming to Boston, Connie had the same corner suite that looks down on the nave of Trinity Church and the Old World angles of St. James Street. Gray and gray, Connie would sit like a male version of Whistler's portrait of his Mother, talking in baritone whispers and seeming misplaced in the go-get-'em bustle of the ball business. And now he is rising 77, with twinges of infirmity which may make next season his last.

The life size statue of the Alabaster Girl who hugged a nightgown about her classic figure and grinned coyly at the lobby sitters is gone from the newel of the staircase. Her girlish curves no longer fit the streamlines of modern decoration and she has been sent to the basement. Time was when John McGraw took his midnight stance beneath her pedestal and counted his Giants into their cells, ticking off his potential inebriates and exalted hayshakers who, during life, turned his hair gradually gray. Ah me!

Ah Moon of My Delight!

AH ME! IT WAS IN THE HOLLOW OF those stairs that John had stood on the night that Hugh McQuillan, the frisky pitcher, rode up two flights and took the freight elevator to emerge by the ash exit. It was a starlit night as he paused to gulp the air of freedom and say, "Boy wotta night" before shoving off to some intown hot spot.

And history says, as he paused, another voice, the throaty growl, of John McGraw had agreed, "Yes, a lovely night. It makes one think of a canoe, a pretty girl and soft music. . ."

"Look at that moon" old John had invited with a sigh, ". . . take a good look because it's costing you fifty dollars." Ah yes! The alabaster lobby girl is gone below stairs and John sleeps under some grassy mound and the moon now looks in vain for Hugh McQuillan.

The horsehair settees which conformed to the curve of the foyer windows, the spot where Ty Cobb's nasal snarl used to voice threats against some Red Sox.

"Ah'll cahve 'is black heart out!" are victims to modern frill. Brocaded cushions replace the deep upholstered imprint where a younger Lefty Grove once sucked his black cigars and grunted surly answers. The high and bright cuspies with their wide belled, bugle tops—targets for the liquid marksmanship of Danny Vance and Jaques Fournier—are gone too. The potted palms that knew Hans Wagner when he was a peach-checked kid, the wicker porch-chairs where the immortals sat when Mickey Cochrane roosted across the street as a B. U. Student (The B. U. Administration Building is torn down too), the grandfather's clock on which Babe Ruth scratched his matches, the cigar stand where Grover Cleveland Alexander used to chat with the pretty sales girl. All, all are gone with like the leaves of yesteryear. Autumn's ghostly period hangs in the haze over the street as nature prepares to wrap itself in the garment of experience and lie down to pleasant dreams. Ah me! The melancholy days have come. Who said that?

LOUIS TO STAY CHAMPION FOR YEARS, SAYS CONWAY

By JACK CONWAY

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 21—Joe Louis, who knocked out Bob Pastor after 38 seconds of fighting, in the 11th round before 50,000 persons in Briggs Stadium, will defend his world's heavyweight championship against Tony Galento next June in a bout that will be staged in New York or Chicago.

On the form Louis displayed as he crushed Pastor's championship hopes, he will conquer Galento and continue to rule his boxing division for three to five years.

There isn't a heavyweight on the listic horizon who has a chance of conquering the Louis who looked so impressive as he outboxed and outpunched the courageous Pastor.

Louis scored six knockdowns, four in the first round, one in the second and one in the 11th. Each time it was a right-hand smash that dropped Pastor to the canvas.

Louis proved that a fast, short right hand delivered with all of his power could catch up with the fast moving Pastor. Bob is a jack-in-the-box boxer who keeps darting along the ropes, and coming at his opponent with flicking left jabs.

SETS PASTOR UP

The "Brown Bomber" was obliged to set Pastor up with left jabs. As Bob hesitated the slightest fraction of a second, Louis would crash a lightning right to the jaw. Every ounce of strength at Louis' command was behind these blows that shook Bob to the soles of his feet.

Jimmy Johnston stated from the apron of the ring that the result might have been different if Louis had not scored the four knockdowns in the first round.

I do not believe it would. Louis

THE END. Bob Pastor goes down for sixth and last time in fight with Champion Joe Louis. End came after 37 seconds of 11th round. Right to jaw was clincher.

AT HIS BEST. Pastor ducks right thrown by Champion Joe Louis. Bob made marvelous comeback after being floored four times in first round and once in second. Lightning didn't strike again until the fatal 11th.

Chicago Harlem Quiet; Used to Joe Winning

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (AP)—Ordinarily when Joe Louis wins a heavyweight fight Chicago's south side Negro colony "goes to town" in celebration.

But last night after the champion's 11-round victory in Detroit over Bob Pastor, Chicago darktown didn't demonstrate. Police Sergt. William Walsh of the Wabash ave. station observed:

"Last night was the quietest since the Brown Bomber started his career. I guess everybody's getting used to his winning."

Pastor Outclassed; Louis Set for Years

Pastor could annoy and tantalize the champion by his left jabs and running tactics, but he couldn't hurt him.

Every time Louis sent a left hook to the jaw Pastor was forced back. When Louis crashed his right to the chin or jaw, Pastor's legs sagged and his eyes became glassy. It was only a question of how long it would take the "Brown Bomber" to shoot his lighter opponent down.

The crowd liked Pastor for his courage and daring, and it cheered him every time he survived a round. But even Bob's most ardent admirers did not give him a chance of winning once Louis counted with the first knockdown.

PASTOR WINS ROUND

Louis carried every round but the eighth which went to Pastor on points. Louis was showing a bruise under one of his eyes and apparently had injured his hand.

From the fifth round on Louis knew Pastor couldn't hit. Joe would deliberately leave openings for Pastor's punches in an effort to get a solid right hand blow over.

Louis was unmarked. Pastor's right eye was badly cut, while Bob was also bruised severely on face and body.

Perhaps Pastor, a college graduate, was too brave under fire. When Louis scored easily with left jabs early in the first round, he opened fire with both hands to the head.

As the crowd cheered, Louis pulled back a few inches and uncorked his right. The blow landed flush on Pastor's jaw. The young challenger's knees buckled and he dropped to his knees. Pastor was up almost immediately.

Louis held his right duke on his shoulder much like a machine gun. Once he got the range again, the "Brown Bomber" whizzed a terrific right to the jaw.

Pastor's feet shot from under him and he plunged to the canvas. For a few seconds it did not look as if Pastor would be able to get up, but at the count of nine Bob was prepared to continue.

LOUIS DEADLY

Louis looked deadly as he shuffled forward. Joe's left once more made the opening, the right hit Pastor's chin, and the challenger went down for another count of nine.

As the crowd prepared to leave, the New York youngster got up only to run into another right that knocked him down again. The gong came to Pastor's rescue as he started to face Louis' machine gun fire once more.

The brief minute's rest between rounds enabled Jimmy Johnston to administer first aid and also give Bob some advice. Jimmy told Pastor to keep going backward and not to take any chances.

Pastor followed instructions as best he could, but the Louis fire caught up with him. A left hook stopped him in his tracks, a right hand punch caused him to go crashing to the canvas.

Pastor's eyes looked as big as saucers as he looked up at the ring lights and watched Referee Hennessy's arm tolling the count. At nine Pastor's heart more than his legs lifted him into action.

FISTS OF IRON

Louis refused to hurry. He kept stalking his prey, shooting lefts and then rights. He ripped a punch across Pastor's left eye that opened a wound. He drew the claret from Bob's nose. He painted Pastor's face red, and left the marks of his fists of iron on the challenger's body.

Louis was always the perfect fighting machine. He didn't hurry. He didn't make any mistakes. He knew he could accomplish his job, and he took his time about it.

Pastor reminded one of a fly being pursued by somebody with a crushing wire contraption. The poor fly had to eventually give up and accept its doom. In this case it was Pastor who was beaten down.

The end came after 38 seconds in the eleventh round when Pastor was set up for the kill by a savage left jab to the face. Bob hesitated for a fraction of a second as he did not seem to know which way to turn.

BOB DOWN AGAIN

Louis took one step forward, his machine gun right and released from its perch on his shoulder, the blow crashed to Bob's jaw and he went to the canvas.

It was apparent Pastor would be unable to get up. The count of Referee Hennessy was a mere formality. After Pastor was counted out, the referee lifted Louis' right arm as a token of victory.

The same procedure will take place next June. Only on that occasion it will be Tony Galento who will be flattened. Galento has already been knocked out once by the "Brown Bomber" and may be he doesn't mind the ending.

The bout was a financial success, while Pastor's courage and Louis' deadly punching gave the fans sufficient thrills.

Incidentally this writer picked Louis to win, and predicted there wouldn't be a quick knockout, I said Pastor went ten rounds with Louis before and so would not go down in a hurry. Bob lasted into the 11th round which was working a bit overtime.

Detroit Darktown Goes Wild

DETROIT, Sept. 21 (AP)—The Paradise Valley folk, residents of Detroit's darktown who knew Joe Louis from the days when he was one of them, filled the streets with merrymaking until dawn today in tribute to their own great champion.

Hardly had the count of 10 rolled from the booming loudspeakers when the buildings of the quarter disgorged their listening crowds into the street.

Garishly clad for the occasion, they piled into each other's arms to release their pent-up enthusiasm in a wild session of swing.

Victory had been a foregone conclusion to his erstwhile neighbors, and victory in the home town made it even sweeter.

But the very vigor of the celebration kept its object at a distance.

Crowds which rapidly grew unmanageable gathered outside the night spots where Louis was scheduled to make an appearance, and, Joe took one look at the surging throng and pointed his car homeward.

"I'm tired," Joe announced, and while the clamor of the crowd grew steadily louder outside, the champion fell asleep.

Louis Hits 'Slipping' Reports

DETROIT, Sept. 21 (AP)—A crushing right to the jaw sent little Bob Pastor his his knees, dazed and helpless, in the 11th round at Briggs Stadium, and Champion Joe Louis had snuffed out one more fighter who made the mistake of facing him the second time.

DIDN'T SEE PUNCH

The blow so numbed Pastor's senses that he didn't hear as the gray-haired referee, Sam Hennessey, tolled 10.

They had to life him to his tired legs, and he mumbled apologetically: "I didn't see the punch. I didn't see it coming at all."

It must have been a deeply satisfying victory for the big, vacant-faced Negro, who was defending his title for the first time before cheering "home folks," a great number of them of his own race.

He had knocked the New York boy down five times in the first two rounds, and then, after what he described as a "breathing spell," had dropped him with a single blow, clean and neat.

It was what he had dreamed of doing ever since the night 30 months ago that Pastor had danced around and taunted him in Madison Square Garden.

LOUIS EXPLAINS

Some of the experts were saying after the fight that Joe wasn't the Brown Bomber of old, else he never would have let Pastor get away from him temporarily after he had slugged him to the canvas repeatedly at the outset of the battle.

They thought the champ's legs looked tired and that he was befuddled in the eighth, ninth and tenth rounds, all of which Pastor won. But Joe laughed at that.

"I knew I was in there for a 20-round fight," he said.

"I wasn't in any hurry after I hit him so much there at the start. But when I sat down at the end of the tenth I felt strong and fresh, so I told "Chappie" (Jack Blackburn, his trainer) that I would get him in the next round, and I did."

'Pastor Hurt Me in Eighth,' Louis Admits

DETROIT, Sept. 21—Joe Louis in his dressing room after his eleven-round knockout of Bob Pastor declared that the challenger hurt him with a right hand punch to the jaw delivered in the eighth round.

"When Pastor scored with the right to the jaw that shook me up in the eighth round, he felt into a clinch instead of pulling away and hitting me again," said Louis. "I then had a chance to recover from the effects of the first blow.

"My only injuries are a strained finger, and a bruise under one of my eyes.

Louis called the knockout round. This writer was seated a few feet from Joe's corner in the press row.

"I'll knock him out this round," Louis said to Trainer Blackburn as he waited for the gong to sound for the opening of the eleventh round."

"That's okay," said Blackburn. "Go get him."

Louis did . . .

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 21—Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President was among those at the ringside . . . Manager Art Ross of the Bruins hockey club took time out to tell the members of the press that the National Hockey League would be in action during the coming season despite the war . . .

Canada will send only two brigades to Europe between now and spring . . . There are about 11,000 men in a Canadian brigade . . . There will be sufficient enlistments to take care of this quota.

Jack Adams, boss of the Detroit Redwings, was also at the ringside . . . He asked me to say hello to Bill Grimes . . . I asked Adams what he thought of the Bruins.

"The Bruins are like the Yanks," replied Jack . . . "I don't see anybody in sight who is going to beat the Bruins . . . We are planning some improvements with the Redwings and hope to have a successful season."

Walter O. Briggs, Jr., known as "Spike" to Jack Kenney and his other Detroit friends, had charge of caring for the 50,000 fans who jammed Briggs Stadium for the title bout . . . John Kieran of the New York Times, who also has an interesting radio program, told me he informed Governor Leverett Saltonstall that he would come to Boston in January to speak in behalf of the Community Fund.

"I met Governor Saltonstall at a luncheon in New York," said Kieran . . . "They placed a New York detective on one side of Governor Saltonstall and me on the other . . . I started to wonder what I had done to make it necessary for them to give the Governor police protection . . . I remember Governor Saltonstall when he rowed on the Harvard crew."

Joe Jacobs was around the Book-Cadillac telling everybody how Tony Galento knocked out Lou Nova in 14 rounds . . . "I don't know how he does it," said Jacobs, referring to Galento . . . "He drinks all the beer he wishes, while he stays up half of the night . . . After a bout Tony doesn't wait for you to soothe his bruises with hot towels . . . He gets into his auto and drives home."

Dan Carroll had a big chunk of money on Pastor to win at liberal odds . . . Jimmy Johnston also placed his own money on Bob . . . Joe Jacobs said he backed Galento at odds of 8 to 5 in the early betting only to find Nova a 4 to 1 choice at ring time . . . Jacobs won $4000 when Two Ton sent over his big wallop.

Fair Grounds Like a Country Fair

THE WEIGHING IN CEREMONIES took place at the Fair Grounds before the running of the first race . . . The race track people felt that interest in Louis and Pastor would help the attendance which it did . The Fair Grounds racing is run off like that at country fairs in Massachusetts.

There is an odds board, but no "tote" . . . Betting stops five minutes before post time as it is necessary for lightning calculators to figure out the closing odds . . . A few last-minute bets will drop a 20-to-1 shot down to 3 to 1 . . . It has been a holiday for the long shot players.

There was a $2000 double on Tuesday with only three holders of the winning tickets . . . Al Buck of the New York Evening Post, who was once associated with the sports staff of this newspaper, was the original Pastor man . . . Al predicted Pastor would some day be fighting for the championship.

The hotels and night spots did a boom business as a result of the fight . . . On the day of the bout thousands of people stood for hours in front of the entrance of the Book Cadillac Hotel to get a peek at the celebrities.

Jimmy Johnston, Pastor's manager, was at the Book Cadillac, and the challenger spent much time with his pilot . . . Bob had a suite at the Statler . . . He stopped at the Statler when he defeated Roscoe Toles, and he insisted upon having quarters in the same hotel for the Louis bout . . . I saw Jack Benny and a party of friends in the cocktail lounge of the Book Cadillac . . . Probably drinking a toast to Fred Allen.

Chicago May Get Another Title Bout

THE SUCCESS OF THE LOUIS-PASTOR BOUT in Detroit caused the West to receive new consideration from Mike Jacobs . . . Chicago may once more be the scene of a championship match next June . . . Galento would draw more money in Chicago fighting for the title than he would in New York.

There was no ticket speculation on the fight . . . The $27 ringside seats sold without a premium, with the people in high places, of course, getting preference . . . Mike Jacobs built a lot of good will for himself by making sure there wasn't a ticket scandal . . . Mike was also liberal with the Detroit newspapers and political leaders in the matter of complimentary tickets.

Frank McDonnell, former boxing commissioner, is a racing steward at the Fair Grounds . . . McDonnell was one of the original Louis men . . . At the time Frank was sports editor of the Detroit Times.

Detroit's plants have organized for the possibility of the U. S. getting involved in the war . . . Harry Bennet, a former boxer, is still one of the big powers with Henry Ford . . . Ed Don George, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, was at the ringside . . . Don says Jimmy Londos and his bride have gone to New Zealand on their honeymoon . . .

They operated extra planes from Chicago for the fight. In the West they use planes like they do taxicabs in Boston . . . Many of the big manufacturers have their private planes . . . Bill Corum and Damon Runyon gave a Broadway touch to the show . . . Swifty Morgan was among those present and sent greetings to Lou Smith, Col. Dave Egan, Tom Thorp and the rest of the gang at Rockingham.

The weather was a bit cool but everybody was pleased with the fact it was fair.

Senators' Speed Artist Quits With Bad Arm

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—George Washington Case, young Senator outfielder, has retired for the season. His right arm has gone bad. With 51 stolen bases to his credit.

If the Senators knew what was wrong with Case's arm, things wouldn't look so dark. The ailment, however, remains a mystery.

Case hasn't been in the Washington lineup for a week. On his last appearance the Senators dropped a 3 to 2 decision to the White Sox largely due to Case.

Playing right field, he muffed a line drive and then—with an easy throw facing him—let fly with one of the wildest heaves seen this year in Griffith's stadium.

Manager Bucky Harris took him out of the lineup immediately, but it wasn't because of the double error. Case was in pain.

Case is going to the doctors and then he plans to spend the winter following their advice.

Cards-Reds Series To Decide Pennant

Like the break of dawn, it's constantly becoming clearer that the National League pennant race isn't going to be decided until the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals come to grips in the waning hours of the season next week.

For days the two have been separated by the smallest of margins, unable to make a decisive gesture.

The situation was emphasized as Bucky Walters pitched the Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Phillies and the Redbirds swarmed over the Brooklyn Dodgers, 10-4, to maintain their stern vigil 2½ games out of first place.

NO. 26 FOR WALTERS

Cincinnati's conquest was the 26th of the season for Walters, who sprinkled six hits and took steps toward winning his own game by getting in the way of a pitched ball in the ninth inning and scoring the deciding run.

St. Louis staged a couple of its now typical batting bombardments to victimize the Dodgers.

After being held to three hits for five innings, and with two out in the sixth, the Cardinals rallied for four runs on four hits and an error. Then, when Brooklyn became threatening, they set off another five-run blast in the seventh.

HUBBELL OLD SELF

The day wasn't static throughout the circuit, however, because the Chicago Cubs lost to the New York Giants, 4-2, and saw their last hope of repeating their 1938 pennant parade go glimmering.

Carl Hubbell's hex put them ten games behind the leaders with only nine left to play.

This is the standing:

Club	Won	Lost	Games behind	Games to play
Cincinnati	87	54		13
St. Louis	85	57	2½	*11
Chicago	79	64	10	9
Brooklyn	74	68	12	15

*One game with New York cancelled.

BROWNS GIVE ALL AGAINST RED SOX

By JOE CASHMAN

Manager Fred Haney has felt compelled to plaster many a fine on his Brownies for indifferent play, but you could never accuse any of the basement boys of lack of hustle in their performances against the Red Sox.

They may be torpid tail-enders against six other rivals but they're fighting fools against the Hose.

Today this Mound City crew is celebrating a victory over the natives in the longest game of the American League season; an 11 to 8 decision gained after 16 innings of bitter battling in the mid-week marathon at the Fens.

And that was the cellarites' sixth triumph over the Crosinmen, which means that if they can take the final fray of the engagement this p. m. they'll boast as many verdicts over our heroes as do the champion Yankees.

Any other club in the loop would have admitted Sox superiority yesterday with Robert Moses Grove, in quest of his 15th win, enjoying a 6 to 2 lead going into the eighth inning. Any other foe would have gone through the motions of bringing the contest to a close as quickly as possible and hustled off to forget the setback in the recreations of the evening.

CHASE GROVE IN EIGHTH

But not the Brownies, who are going nowhere unless it be to a modern record for defeats in an American League season.

They chased Grove in the eighth. They put over four runs to go two runs in front in the ninth.

They saw that advantage disappear in the last of the frame when the Sox chalked up two runs, but even that didn't discourage them.

They went on from there to hold the Hose at bay until they wore down Freddie Ostermueller and hopped on him for three runs in semi-darkness of the 16 stanza.

The game lasted five innings longer than any previous contest at the Yawkey Yard this season. Had not the tie being broken in the 16th, the umpires would have been forced to call a halt because of darkness.

A free-hitting loosely played battle in the early stages, the overtime was featured by spectacular fielding and anaemic hitting, as is usually the case in diamond marathons.

Ostermueller, entering with one out in the ninth, yielded only three blows to the 16th.

Bob Harris, hurling the last nine frames for the hostiles, gave up only four hits over the stretch in his first appearance on the hill after a length absence with a sore arm.

LEFTY OFF FORM

Grove was far below normal form, giving up 11 hits, but it appeared as though the hitting of Lou Finney and Tedy Williams and the defensive support of his infield, which turned in four double plays, would carry him to his 15th win until the Browns rallied against Joe Heving and Jim Bagby in the ninth.

Finney, the outstanding $7500 baseball bargain of the year, made four hits, including a triple and double, and drove in four runs, including two in the ninth to send the tilt into overtime.

Williams tagged Roxie Lawson for homer No. 29 into the right-field stands with a mate on in the third to boost his pace-setting runs-batted-in total to 139. He was hit by a Lawson pitched ball to start a four-run uprising in the fifth. One of four walks he later received paved the way for the two-run Boston rally in the ninth.

But at dusk the Sox had lost and were only three games up on the third place Indians.

They hope to at least maintain that lead this afternoon when they chase Denny Galehouse out against Vernon Kennedy.

JUST BEFORE NO. 29. Ted Williams, kid Sox outfielder, who hit 29th home run of season against Browns. Ted is leading league in runs batted in.

Newark Bears Whip Redwings

NEWARK, Sept. 21 (AP)—Young Hank Borowy and Norman Branch collaborated in a three-hit pitching show that beat the Rochester Redwings 5 to 0 and gave the Newark Bears their first victory in three games of the International League's final Governor's Cup series.

It's a fact—no sooner do the bright-and-shiny new models come into the market than a crop of excellent used-car values starts coming in, too. People who can't resist buying the very newest models are the people who often bring in last year's (or the year before's) models in almost good-as-new condition. If you're looking for the tops in used-car value, their good luck is yours. This is the time—and the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser Automobile for Sale Columns is the place to find these values.

Watch City Team Lacks Capable Substitutes

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

There's an especially deep gloom hanging over Athletic Field in Waltham these afternoons as Coach Jack Leary prepares his high school squad for the opening of the football season Saturday with Rindge Tech taking over the role of invader.

Two ankle injuries have forced a pair of the Watch City regulars to the side-lines so that now it is doubtful if they will see action in the first game.

Although it is still indefinite that boys will have to watch the contest as spectators, Leary feels it is hoping for too much to expect both to return. With the squad lacking capable replacements, the loss of these regulars, two backs, sincerely dampens Waltham's ambitions of geting off on the right foot.

"Our starting team shaped up as a fairly strong eleven," declared Leary, "but the fact that we had so few good substitutes was beginning to worry me a bit.

"With co-Captain Dick Johnstone on the bench, we hit the first snag in our plans. Johnstone was slated to take care of the kicking and passing and his injury tossed all these arrangements out the window.

LACK REPLACEMENTS

"Then Ernie Frari pulled up with the same thing to throw us further off the track. Frari's ankle is not as badly hurt as Johnstone's, but we can't take a chance putting him into the game until the doctor says it's O. K.

"We had too few replacements to lose this pair of ball carriers."

Leary has Dick Bennett working out at quarterback in place of the co-captain. Bennett will take over the large burden of the club, calling signals, kicking and passing. Although he fails to come up to Johnstone in all departments, Bennett has been doing a fine job and may even prove a revelation to the mentor until Johnstone's return.

Bob Carter and Chick Rutter have been filling in for the ailing Frari, running in close quarters for the starting halfback berth if the regular fails to recover in time.

Bingo Leaf and Bob Nyholm are battling to be other Leary elections for this opener. Nyholm is a transfer from Maynard high where he played guard. Because of the shortage of backs, he has been shifted to the full-back vacancy. He tips the scales at 175 pounds and is expected to prove a valuable asset in picking up yardage through power drives.

MC DONALD CHOSEN

Toby McDonald has gained the call over Perley Grant for the starting assignment at center, while the guards should be Chet Petrowski and Bob Whitney. Paul Britton and Jack Neil will be the first call reserves and should see a lot of service this campaign.

Two veterans of last year, Co-Captains Buster Goguen and Guy Sanderson, will be at the tackles, with Fred Kennedy practically the only capable replacement.

Don Cox and Ben Algeria will have Bill Manning as reinforcement at the ends. Cox and Algeria were regulars on the 1938 eleven and should prove tough boys to circle on.

Waltham has an open date a week from Saturday that Coach Leary has been trying to fill. Malden Catholic had hoped to plug the gap, filling out a schedule of 11 games for the Watch City club, but Brother Vincent feared that the booking might interfere with the opening of the Catholic League.

The schedule after Rindge, allowing for the following opening date, includes Somerville, Revere, Haverhill, Lynn English, Arlington, Medford, Newton, Providence Central and the annual wind-up with Brockton.

(Quincy high school's prospects will appear in tomorrow's Daily Record.)

KID BOOTS. Bob Nyholm shows Jack Leary how he used to kick them at Maynard High. A transfer student, Nyholm has been shifted from guard to the backfield by Leary, who can make good use of kicking ability.

Race Mechanic Killed Making Tire Tests

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 21 (AP)—Lawson Harris of Indianapolis, a mechanic, was injured fatally, and Babe Stapp of Los Angeles, veteran automobile race driver, was hurt when a race car they were testing crashed into a wall at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Harris died at the Methodist Hospital two hours after the accident. His head was crushed and he was lacerated over his entire body.

Three More Join Hospital Squad at B. C.

Three more B. C. gridiron warriors today had been added to the hospital list at the Heights.

Lucey and Geogehan got their medicine in scrimmage with the freshmen, Goodreault in a passing drill when he and end partner Dick Harrison collided going after a Charlie O'Rourke toss.

Goodrealt's misfortune was more an aggravation of a past hurt than a new injury. Although his knee swelled to twice its normal size after the collision, he is expected back in a few days.

Despite the many injuries on the squad, Coach Leahy says he will put on a 60-minute game Saturday between the freshmen and the varsity.

Injuries Raise Havoc With Brown Gridders

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 21—The injury jinx had hit Brown today leaving four members of the varsity laid up with injuries.

They included Tommy Nash, end; Spencer Manrodt, guard; Bill Stepczyk, back; Joe Finkleatine, end.

Midget Drive Race at Medford

The outstanding card of the year with the New England semi-final midget auto race championship as the feature over a 30-lap distance takes place at the Riverside Park Speedway, Medford, tonight.

The double-point award to the winner is of greatest interest to Bob King, Eddie Casterline and Oscar Ridlon. This trio is trailing Eddie Eng for championship honors and a victory for any of the runner-ups this evening will change the entire championship complex.

The plans of Managing Director Abbey Hatfield to hold several special sprint events tonight will take place as scheduled. There will be three special sprints in addition to the 30-lap feature, plus the usual time trials and qualifying heats to round out the best card of the year.

Blue Devils Count On Perfect Season

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 21 (AP)—Duke's Blue Devils can't expect to go on forever with one perfect season after another, but they have a glowing chance of making it two unbeaten regular campaigns in a row this year.

That's a large order of Wallace Wade's Big Blue club, with Colgate, Pittsburgh and Syracuse coming up on successive Saturdays, starting Oct. 7, but Blue Devil boosters here are banking on it.

They see the biggest threat in Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets, who are always tough in Atlanta and toughest when the Dukes are flying high. They spoiled one unbeaten mark for Wade in 1933.

It takes only a quick glance at the squad of 49 working in the big pine-bordered bowl here to tell that the Blue Devils are going to be hard to get along with.

AT WADES CALL

FOUR FINE ENDS, Willard (Bolo) Perdue, who blocked a punt to beat Pitt last year, Bill Bailey, Leonard Darnell, and Jim Marton, all lettermen.

TWO LETTERMAN TACKLES, Alex Winterson and Tony Ruffa, who kicked the goal that gave Duke its short-lived lead over Southern California in the last Rose Bowl game; and seven reserves headed by Bob McDonough, 200-pound sophomore.

TWO LETTERMAN GUARDS, Capt. Allen (Sweetpea) Johnson and Frank Ribar, a converted tackle, and seven more understudies.

AT CENTER, Wade will miss red-headed Dan Hill, but he has Gordon Burns and Spencer Robb up from the reserves and Aubury Gill a sophomore who likely will be getting the starting job before the season is half over.

The net result will be a typical Wade-coached forewall, a straight line forming the hardest distance goalward between two given points.

But in the backfield the Dukes will pack more wallops. Not so good defensively as the 1938 secondary that shut out all opponents until Southern California scored in the last minute to win the Rose Bowl battle, 7-3, this year's backs will be faster, more versatile and there will be more of them.

BROTHERS IN BACKFIELD

In the first backfield are the triple threat brothers, George and Wes McAfee, Easy Eaves, veteran blocking back, and Roger Robinson, full. In the second quartet are Steve Lach, George Bokinsky, Jap Davis and Carl Deane. Winston Siegfried, a sophomore hailed as one of the South's finest prospects, is running with the third squad, which gives one an idea.

Wade's comment as he views this lineup of talent: "It's too early to tell you whether we'll have a good team . . . we don't know anything, etc., etc."

The schedule: Sept. 30, Davidson at Davidson, N. C.; Oct. 7, Colgate; Oct. 14, Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh; Oct. 21, Syracuse; Oct. 28, Wake Forest; Nov. 4, Georgia Tech at Atlanta; Nov. 11, Virginia Military at Lexington, Va.; Nov. 18, North Carolina; Nov. 25, N. C. State at Raleigh.

Finland Goes Ahead With Olympic Plans

This was reported here today by Lauri Miettinen, general secretary of the games committee, when informed that the United States was seriously considering an offer to sponsor the event.
